RUSSIANS ADVANCE 15 MILES

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, May 25.—Smashing attacks by the Russians against the Austro-German right wing along the Dneister river in Galicia have forced the Germanic troops back fifteen miles, according to the latest reports received today.

The Czar's troops are still pressing forward in this region, their progress threatening the Teutons' centre on the San River.

In the last week the Russians have taken 18,000 prisoners, 45 guns and large quantities of war supplies. Between the Pilica and Vistula rivers another Russian offensive against the Austro-German left flank is in full swing.

The German lines which were approaching Opatow last week have now been rolled back to the neighborhood of Kielce.

EUGENIA KELLY, HEIRESS, CALLED "INCORRIGIBLE"

$75,000,000 Art Treasures in Italy Moved

By International News Service.

ROME, May 25.—Great stores of antiques and art works in the northern Italian cities are being moved to Sicily and other points in Southern Italy to prevent their capture or damage by bombardments. These art works from the hands of the old masters are regarded as priceless, but are commercially estimated as worth more than $75,000,000. The removals are being made from Florence, Venice, Milan, Genoa, Udine and other cities.

HINT OF KELLY CASE ARRESTS

NEW YORK, May 25.—Nine subpoenas have ben issued for persons well know in Broadway and society, andthe arrest of one or more me on a serious charge was disussed as a result of the arraignmnt of Miss Eugenia Kelly, th nineteen-year-old heiress to amillion dollars, upon the complint of her mother that the youg woman is incorrigible.

Disclosures are xpected as to what became of a peal necklace, a diamond ring and othr valuable jewelry given to Miss Key by her mother on her eighteenth bithday. Witnesses are expected to ell whether or not the report is tue that Miss Kelly gave the necklac to one of her "gentlemen" acquainnces for a ridiculously small sum.

The cashier f the Produce Exchange Bank is xpected to tell about Miss Kelly's acount and the checks drawn on it. Witers in some of the shining places f Broadway will be asked to tell abut parties of which Miss Kelly wasa member and who paid the bills.

GAVE NOTES; PAWNED GEMS.

John F. McIntyre, counsel for Mrs. Kelly, said:

"Every day ve are uncovering new notes given by this young woman for sums of mone spent on these Broadway boys. A present we think these notes run io into several thousand dollars. Tere is no telling what our investigatin will finally disclose.

"I belive that the girl has contracted dbts to such an amount her income as been permanently impaired. Vhen my detectives went out to subpena some of those Broadway boys al had disappeared from their haunts.

"As for her jewelry, she pawned some f it. We have found the places where she pawned it and expect to recover it. We have information that the ope of pearls was sold for an insignificant sum to one of those Broadway leeches.

"Probably our investigation will lead to some serious charge against one of the men. Also we understand that a number of persons persuaded Miss Kelly to give her note to loan sharks, and one in particular is now under investigation by us.

MISS KELLY WON'T TALK.

Beyond saying that she "didn't care what New York thought of her," Miss Kelly refused to discuss her mother's charges that she drank absinthe and champagne, smoked cigarettes and seldom went home before 3 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Thomas, who inherited one-quarter of her father, Edward Kelly's, fortune of $3,500,000, the other quarter going to Eugenia in trust until she is twenty-one, and the remaining one-half being left to the mother, thus epitomized the character of her beautiful young sister:

"Eugenia thought that to be incorrigible was to be 'smart' and to be smart was to be fashionable.

"Too much money too young is one of the contributing causes of her present difficulty.

"Eugenia wanted to be a bachelor

POLICE IN HUNT FOR FIRE BUG

Five incendiary fires, most of them in basements, were discovered within a few hours of one another in Brighton today. Police, both local and from the State force, have been stationed about the streets in an attempt to solve the mystery.

The last two fires were at 24 Litchfield street and 16 Lincoln street. The first was discovered about 11 o'clock and the other at 11:25. Quick work kept the damage down to $25 and $50 respectively.

As the fires were all within a limited area and set within a short time of one another, the police believe the incendiary soon will be captured.

Although no very serious damage to property has resulted, there were several narrow escapes.

The damage at No. 16 Lincoln street in the basement of a two-and-a-half-story wooden dwelling was $50.

In the basement of a three-story dwelling at No. 24 Litchfield street the damage was $25.

The Rev. William H. van Allen, D. D., rector of the Church of the Advent, will be elected bishop coadjutor of the diocese of Central New York at its convention this week. He will accept the position. Dr. van Allen is popular in that section of the State, having been rector of the Episcopal Church at Elmira, N. Y., for many years before coming to Boston.

He is the choice of the high churchmen of the diocese. The bishop of the diocese is the Rt. Rev. C. T. Olmsted, D. D., who was formerly connected with Trinity Church, New York.

Spain, Not U. S., Acts for Kaiser at Rome

By International News Service.

MADRID, May 25.—The Spanish ambassador at Rome has been officially authorized by his government to take over the German and Austrian interests in Italy. It had been expected that the American ambassador would be asked to assume this duty, but the Germanic allies turned to Spain instead.

Nearly Two Million in Copper Exports

WASHINGTON, May 25.—A total of 11,501,528 pounds of copper of all classes, valued at $1,968,697, was exported from the principal customs districts of the United States during the week ended May 15, the department of commerce today reported. Imports for the period were 8,866,485 pounds of ore, worth $242,238, and 3,704,514 pounds of pigs and other forms, valued at $522,608.

Wilson Hopeful Over Delay of Kaiser's Note

WASHINGTON, May 25.—President Wilson today told callers that the American government was not in possession of any information indicating when the German reply to the Lusitania note would be sent.

He said Ambassador Gerard had made different forecasts, but that his calculations had been upset by recent developments in the war.

Asked if he believed the delay would improve the prospects of an amicable settlement between the United States and Germany, the President replied that it did no harm to think over anything.

This was taken to indicate that the Executive believes the danger of a rupture between the two nations is lessening.

The President indicated that he had been absorbed in many problems relating to the war, but refused to state what they were.

12 Seniors at Wellesley Are Brides-to-Be

In direct contradiction to the assertion that Wellesley girls are slow to wed, twelve members of the senior class have already announced their engagement, it became known today.

In the June number of the Journal of Heredity, Professor Roswell Johnson and Bertha J. Stutzmann of the University of Pittsburgh claim not only that Wellesley girls marry late, but that their families are small.

The figures show, they claim, that twenty years after graduation finds only one Wellesley girl in two married, and that the marriage result in an average of only one and a half children.

Nevertheless the following seniors admit they are contemplating marriage:

Mary Crocker of Foxboro to Ferdinand Phelps.

Gertrude Folger of Medford to Kenneth C. Crofts.

Calista Howe of Cambridge to J. Gordon Gilkie.

REPORT AUSTRIAN WARSHIP DAMAGED BY FIRE OF ITALIANS

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, May 25.—Official announcement was made today that the Italian army had invaded Austria and was advancing with but little resistance. Several towns have been occupied by the Italians.

As the Austrians retreat before the advancing Italians they are destroying bridges and burning houses to impede the march of King Victor Emmanuel's troops.

The War Office official statement follows:

Along the frontier of Friuli we advanced everywhere into the enemy's territory. The enemy's resistance was feeble.

"We occupied the Caporetto heights between Judrio and Isonzo rivers, and the towns of Cormons, Versa, Corvignano and Terzo.

"The enemy retreated, destroying bridges and burning houses.

"At Carnia, on the frontier, Austrian artillery opened fire upon our positions at 7 p. m. Sunday. Their bombardment was without result. Our artillery on Monday opened fire upon the enemy's gun positions. Our loss under the Austrian bombardment was one killed and one wounded."

REPORT THREE CORPS ACROSS THE BORDER.

Unofficial reports from the frontier say that three Italian army corps, numbering 120,000 men, have invaded Austrian territory.

The towns that have been occupied by the Italians are on the two railway lines running through the frontier districts toward Trieste. The Caporetto hills, Cormons, Corvignano, Versa and Terzo are only a few miles from the Italian frontier, and also only a short distance from the important Austrian [illegible] of [illegible].

The official statement also gave some additional details as to the Italian attacks upon the Austrian port of Buso. It states that seventy Austrians were captured when Italian troops were landed from destroyers at Buso.

AUSTRIAN WARSHIP DAMAGED.

That one of the Austrian warships which bombarded Barletta yesterday was badly damaged by the reply of the Italian land batteries is the belief of the Ministry of Marine. The following official statement was issued today:

"A steamer arriving at Barletta reports that while passing near the promontory of Gargano at midnight last night, it sighted an Austrian warship with a heavy list. It was escorted by four torpedo boats. This probably is the warship which was driven off from Barletta after having fired several shots.

All the diplomatic and papal envoys of Germany and Austria-Hungary have left Rome. Their departure last night was without incident. In the party were Prince von Buelow, German Ambassador to the Quirinal; Baron von Macchio, Austrian Ambassador to Italy; Prince von Schoenberg, Austrian Ambassador to the Vatican; Count von Gruenstein, Bavarian Minister to the Vatican; Herr von Muehlberg, Prussian Minister to the Vatican, and their staffs. The party was scheduled to reached Chiasso, Italy, this morning.

At the same time advices from Vienna stated that the Duke D'Avarna, Italian Ambassador to Austria, had left that city and was expected to arrive here during the day and immediately report to Baron Sonnino, the foreign minister.

It is reported that the Italian Consul at Constantinople has been assassinated, but official confirmation is lacking.

Reports from a Swiss source stated that Emperor William and Field Marshal von Hindenburg were going to the Austro-Italian frontier to lead the armies of the Teutonic allies against the Italians, but these received no credence here.

The Austrians' initial attack by sea and air along the Adriatic coast, while causing only slight damage, spread fear among the civilian population and thousands are fleeing from their homes in dread of another attack.

The following places were the targets for the Austrian attacks: Ancona, Iesi, Potenza, Picena, the Tremiti Islands, Barletta and Varenna. At Ancona, where Austrian ships carried on a two-hour bombardment, an Austrian merchant ship lying in the harbor was sunk.

Strong precautions are being taken to guard Rome against attacks by Austrian aeroplanes. High angle guns have been mounted in the suburbs, and many persons have provided bomb proof cellars in which to take refuge.

A fleet of Italian aeroplanes will patrol the sky by day and searchlights will play over the heavens by night.

Rome is about 275 miles from Trieste, Austria, in a straight line.

Skirmishing is in progress in the mountain passes of the Tyrolese Alps, and especially near the frontier town of Strassoldo, where the Italian patrol of cavalry was particularly strong.

THUNDER OF BIG GUNS.

A dispatch from Udine reported that the thunder of heavy guns could be heard from the north beginning at daybreak.

New Austrian howitzers that were dragged to the mountain tops several weeks ago have been bombarding the Italian outposts on the Adige in front of Rivoli intermittently. The Italian guns have not replied, as the damage from the Austrian artillery has been slight.

Activity by submarines attached to the Pola and Trieste naval station is expected. An Austrian submarine was seen off Venice late yesterday and today a patrol ship put into Barletta with the news that two submarines of the German U type had been seen far south in the Adriatic looking for prey.

Despite the dispatches to General Zupelli, Minister of War, stating that only small damage had been done by the Austrian aeroplanes, press advices say that a number of civilians were killed and wounded.

At Acona six non-combatants were struck down. Near that city a moving troop train was struck by a bomb, but continued on its way.

TROUBLE IN TRIPOLI.

Italy will probably have to send troops into Tripoli to meet the serious situation developing there. Turkish and German emissaries are going among the tribesmen encouraging them to rise up against the Italians.

The war fervor continues strong in Rome. Premier Salandra's announcement that Italy is in the war to a finish and will not conclude a separate peace seems to have met with public approval.

Telephone communication between Rome and Paris was cut off today. The telegraph wires are still in operation, but working slowly because of the great mass of press matter filed and the slowness of the Italian censors.

The German Protestant hospital has been taken over by the military authorities for care of wounded soldiers.

The most drastic censorship ever known in Italy has been put into effect by the government.

The only war news that the papers may print is that given out officially by the War Office and the Admiralty.

Italians Look for Neutral Attitude by the Bulgarians

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Italian diplomats here look for a neutral attitude on the part of the Bulgarians. If Roumania should enter the war on the side of the allies, as expected in some quarters, they are of the opinion Bulgaria would still maintain her neutrality, although they regard it as possible she might side with Roumania.

Austrian and German diplomats here say they are convinced Roumania will stay neutral.

ITALY SUSPENDS THE PARCEL POST SERVICE WITH U. S.

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Italy today cabled the postoffice department that parcel post service between the United States and that country had been suspended temporarily. Postmaster General Burleson immediately notified all postmasters that until further notice they should not accept any parcel post matter for Italy. Other classes of mail matter are not affected by the order.

The State Department today received a cablegram from B. Harvey Carroll, Jr., American Consul at Venice, reporting that German and Austrian aeroplanes made an attack on the city at dawn on Sunday.

Several bombs were thrown and several persons wounded. One bomb fell near the arsenal and another in the water at San Nicoletto di Lodi. One aeroplane, the Consul stated, flew directly over the consulate amid a hail of machine gun shrapnel and shell fire. The Consul reports no sign of panic among the Venetians who watched the flights.

TURKS DAMAGE ALLIES' CRUISER

By International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 25.—A cruiser of the Anglo-French fleet at the Dardanelles was so badly damaged by shells from Turkish land batteries and bombs dropped from an aeroplane off Gaba Tepeh on Sunday morning that it had to be towed away by five other warships, according to an official statement issued by the Turkish War Office today. The statement also says that in the land fighting on Saturday in the region of Sed El Bahr the allies lost 4,000 killed and wounded.

A dispatch from Mitylene says that allied troops have repulsed all the latest assaults by the Turks on Gallipoli peninsula, and, heavily reinforced, have again taken the offensive. The disembarkation of fresh British and French troops began Sunday. The bombardment of the Dardanelles forts continues.

AUSTRIANS HAIL WAR WITH ITALY AS BLOW AT TRAITOR

By STEVEN BURNETT,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, May 25.—Demonstrations of enthusiasm occurred today as a result of the successful stroke made by the Austrian fleet in bombarding the Italian coasts. Crowds gathered before the War Office and Ministry of Marine and cheered for the Emperor, the army and the navy.

The blow against Italy aroused public rejoicing to a high pitch. There is no doubt that the war against Italy is a popular one, as the general feeling here is that the Roman government broke its solemn pledges in order to gain territory.

Austrian and Turkish flags are waving everywhere. Almost every house and business place is decorated with the national colors.

Despite the bitter feeling against Italy, the departure of the Duke D'Avarna, the Italian ambassador, and his staff, took place last night without incident. No attempt was made to molest the Italian official party as it left the embassy in automobiles and rode to the station, where a special train was waiting.

POINCARE SALUTED KING VICTOR IN NEW BROTHERHOOD

By International News Service.

PARIS, May 25.—"The two sister nations are again fighting for the defence of their common civilization and the liberation of oppressed peoples," says President Poincare of France in a telegram to King Victor Emmanuel, felicitating Italy upon her entrance into the war on the side of the allies. President Poincare further says:

"In the solemn hour wherein Italy enters resolutely upon the glorious path traced by her destinies, the whole of France rejoices. The peoples of these two nations have already been brought together by parentage, traditions and the immortal force of Latin genius.

"Italy and France are forever united by this new brotherhood of arms and this deliberate consecration of their natural relations. I express to Your Majesty my most fervent hopes for the victory of your valiant troops with whom the allied armies are proud to fight to end the enemies of justice and liberty. I wish noble Italy a happy realization of her national aspirations and beg Your Majesty accept this expression of my devoted friendship."

ROUMANIA AND OTHER BALKAN STATES PREPARE

By International News Service.

BUCHAREST, May 25.—Conversations between the Roumanian foreign minister and the envoys of Bulgaria and Greece are now going on. Their result is expected to decide the date of Roumania's participation in the war and the attitude to be adopted by the Sofia and Athens governments.

Roumania's move will undoubtedly be the signal for both Greece and Bulgaria to act. According to well-informed observers here, Bulgaria and Greece will attack Turkey while Roumania will send her army to aid the Russians on the Austrian front.

This Leaves the Skin Free From Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.—Advertisement.

NEW QUADRUPLE ENTENTE FORMED

By HERBERT TEMPLE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

LONDON, May 25.—The Quadruple entente has been born. Italy's agreement with England, France and Russia not to conclude a separate peace has added a fourth member to the combination of powers formerly known as the Triple entente.

As France and England have officially committed themselves to the destruction of German militarism, Russia and Italy must necessarily fight for the same end.

The domains of the four powers thus united contain 688,166,519 inhabitants. Their population and areas follow:

	Population.	Area sq. miles.
Great Britain	438,165,364	13,153,712
France	39,602,258	207,076
Russia	173,359,900	8,770,703
Italy	35,238,997	110,623

The Quadruple entente grew out of the agreement made by Russia and France. England later fell into line.

REICHSTAG MEETS FRIDAY TO PROVIDE FOR ITALIAN WAR

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, May 25.—The Reichstag will meet Friday to make provisions for the war against Italy. The formal declaration of hostilities probably will be issued on that day, though it is possible that a war decree may come earlier from the government.

No formal declaration is necessary, however, to make the situation any clearer. German troops are with those of Austria on the Italian frontier, and will strike with them against Italy.

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES SHOWN IN FRENCH REPORT

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 25.—The heavy losses of the Germans in their counter-attacks along the northern end of the battle line are again featured by the French War Office in an official communique issued today:

Heavy German assaults were launched along the Langemarck-Ypres road in West Flanders and also north of Ablain St. Nazaire in the La Bassee zone of operations, but all were successfully repulsed by the French and British. Great losses were inflicted upon the Germans by the artillery and rifle and machine gun fire of the allies.

SAYS 'EUCOLOTIS' AILED WHITNEY

Dr. Frederick B. Percy of Brookline, the Whitney family physician, today testified at the $220,000 Theodore D. Whitney will trial before Judge Fox and a jury in the Superior Court, that Mr. Whitney was a sufferer from "eucolotis."

When former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, attorney for Mrs. Whitney, asked Dr. Percy what that disease was in every day talk, Dr. Percy said:

"Well, you would call it just plain belly ache."

Dr. Percy further testified that Mr. Whitney was also afflicted with intestinal trouble and that he died of this trouble at the Portsmouth, N. H., City Hospital.

Dr. Percy was asked by Attorney Mayberry if in his opinion Mr. Whitney was of sound mind. The doctor replied that he was.

Continuing, Dr. Percy said: "Mr. Whitney seemed to be indifferent about what he ate. I tried to correct him, but he failed to improve. I saw nothing about his manner that would indicate to me that he used liquor."

William Mahoney, clerk in an auction room, and brother to Annie Mahoney, who has been named chaperone to Mrs. Baker and Whitney, testified that he enjoyed many games of cards with Mrs. Baker and Whitney. The games included casino and 500.

"I partook of a few Sunday dinners at their invitation also," he said. "I would play cards with them and I also saw them play what is known as 'clock golf.'"

As to liquor the witness stated that he had seen Mr. Whitney take a glass of ale or a glass of beer in the basement of the Hampton, N. H., house. He testified that he first went to Brookline, at the Baker house, about ten years ago, and that Mr. Whitney usually left the Baker residence at about 7:30 p. m.

British Fleet Lying in Wait at the Orkneys

ROTTERDAM, May 25.—Waiting for the German fleet to come out, the British North Sea battleship fleet is in the Orkney Islands, north of Scotland.

For over two months there has been no official news given to the world as to its whereabouts or what it was doing. On the contrary, efforts have been made to conceal its location.

The mate of an American merchant ship, held at Kirkwall in the Orkney Islands pending examination, slipped ashore. From the top of a mountain overhanging the landlocked harbor he had a view of the great hidden naval base.

When the American ship was at Kirkwell there were more than seventy great warships lying at anchor under the lee of the Island of Hoy. Forty of these were dreadnaughts and battle cruisers. Thirty were older battleships and large armored cruisers.

In other parts of the bay were fleets of warships of other types. To the left of the battleship fleet was an armada of more than 100 destroyers, while still farther to the left was a fleet of armed merchantmen.

NEW CABINET LIST EXPECTED TODAY

LONDON, May 25.—An announcement of the personnel of the new Cabinet is looked for today.

Premier Asquith is reported to have decided Winston Spencer Churchill shall remain in the Cabinet, though in some other position than that of First Lord of the Admiralty.

The resignation of Lord Fisher as First Sea Lord appears to be definite, he having declined to work with Arthur J. Balfour at the Admiralty.

A meeting of the Nationalist party will be held in Dublin today, at which it is expected more pressure will be brought to bear on John Redmond, the Irish leader, who so far persistently refuses to accept a place in the new Cabinet.

Redmond is said to wish to adhere to the tradition of the Irish party not to take office until Home Rule is in actual operation.

It is understood Premier Asquith tried hard to retain Viscount Haldane as Lord High Chancellor, but the Unionists were so strongly opposed to this that Haldane will be sacrificed.

There is renewed talk of David Lloyd George combining the offices of Chancellor of the Exchequer and Munitions Minister, but this point still remains unsettled.

For Fifty Years Manufacturing Retail Clothiers

Shuman Clothes are the product of an organization that admits of no superior in the manufacture of high grade clothing; not mechanically turned out by the thousands, but each suit carefully designed, cut and finished by expert New England labor; sold direct from maker to wearer, thereby saving the middleman's profit.

The most important part of the clothing industry today is the manufacturing, and the concern manufacturing the clothing it sells has a double advantage; as manufacturers they know exactly what goes into the clothing without taking the "say-so" of any one else, and the clothing is individualized for their particular section of the country.

The Time Saved by this one Remington Feature Will Cover the Whole Cost of the Typewriter

THE Column Selector is its name. It is a Remington invention, found only on Remington-made typewriters. And it will save enough of the operator's time to cover the whole cost of the machine.

What is the Remington Column Selector?

It is a feature which eliminates all time-wasting hand adjustments of the carriage. Watch your operator write a letter. Note how many hand adjustments he makes. Then you will know what this means.

How does it work?

That is what we wish to show you. The Column Selector must be seen to be appreciated. When you have seen it, then you will understand how much of your operator's time it will save.

Call Here and See for Yourself

We will be glad to give you a demonstration of the Column Selector, without any obligation on your part. We will write letters with it, and the same letters without it. This comparative test will prove to you the time-saving and the money-saving.

If you cannot call we shall be glad to demonstrate the Column Selector in your office. Call or write.

FILM PROTESTERS ASK QUICK ACTION

It is the contention of the colored people who seek to drive "The Birth of a Nation" out of Boston that the censorship board created by the law that went into effect last Friday ought to stop the photo-play without a hearing. They say Mayor Curley, Police Commissioner O'Meara and Chief Justice Bolster of the Municipal Court have the power under the new statute.

Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Equal Rights League, both of which bodies have submitted petitions to the censorship board, have not yet received a reply. No date has been fixed for an audience or hearing.

The colored protesters feel the delay is due to the fact that the censors have not organized. The colored organizations are working shoulder to shoulder. There is no conflict. They are said to have 5,000 petitions ready to file with the Boston censors.

LOBBYISTS IN OWN TRAP.

There is an interesting story back of the fight that resulted in the new censorship law. It is a story of how lobbyists for "The Birth of a Nation" fell into their own trap. It tells how Governor Walsh jumped into the breach and saved the day for the negroes, although a coterie of Republicans sought the credit.

Through M. Sumner Coggan they filed a bill seeking the right to appeal from decisions of the Mayor and Police Commissioner, the only censors under the law just wiped out, and to be heard by a justice of the Superior Court, sitting in equity.

The Coggan bill fell by the wayside with the vicious Sullivan measure and a grist of others stifled by the House Judiciary Committee, which reported the bill adding the chief justice of the Boston Municipal Court as a censor with the Mayor and Police Commissioner and demanding that their decisions in the suppression of shows and the revoking of theatre licenses be unanimous.

The motion picture men were at the time too much absorbed in State-wide censorship legislation to give their attention to the local measure, which soon was christened "The Birth of a Nation" bill, because of the strong support given to it by those working on behalf of the show.

Meanwhile the colored forces were fighting the judiciary measure tooth and nail. They induced champions in the House to offer an amendment to change the vote of the proposed triumvirate of censors to a majority, but on May 10, the House killed the amendment by a vote of 118 to 104 and passed the judiciary bill by a margin so decisive as to reflect the support given to it by City Hall and the show lobbyists.

REACHING FOR VOTES.

It was in the Senate that the sleight of hand work was done by Senator "Jim" Bean of Cambridge and his Republican colleagues who saw a chance to nail down the negro votes in their districts and to pose as emancipators.

That amendment idea launched in the House looked good to them with an overwhelming Republican influence in the upper branch. So the amendment bugaboo was revived and fought and carried.

When the measure was sent back to the House for concurrence, Governor Walsh crossed swords with Mayor Curley for the first time in the censorship agitation and opposition to the amendment faded. The Governor sent Secretary Connelly the lobby and in a jiffy the odds were swung in favor of the colored people.

The amended bill encountered feeble opposition when it was returned to the Senate for enactment. There was bitter editorial comment by no less a Republican organ than the Boston Transcript, which denounced the Republican Senators who supported it, calling the bill "thoroughly dishonest" and accusing the Republican solons of "playing cheap politics" to please a misguided minority in the community who "threatened vengeance at the polls." The Transcript also reminded the Republican Senators that they were committing themselves to a stage censorship that would hurt the party.

APPEAL TOO LATE.

But the Transcript appeal came too late, although it was indorsed by all the theatre managers and film producers who saw their error in not having whipped up opposition from the start. Too late also were "The Birth of a Nation" lobbyists in discovering that in pushing across this compromise which they considered a "harmless joker," they furnished a dummy that the Republican majority put teeth into by the two-thirds amendment.

Arguments by film men that new legislation was dangerous and unnecessary when "The Birth of a Nation" was running with crowded houses under the law as it stood were not heeded by the show lobbyists until the trap had snapped on them.

But in putting one over on "The Birth of a Nation" and City Hall forces, the Republicans subjected themselves to the political mercy of Governor Walsh. If they killed the amended bill at the eleventh hour the Republican leaders would have been confronted by the reminder of a Democratic Governor that he had done all he could for the passage of the measure by changing sentiment in the House. And in enacting it the Republicans still faced the annoying realization that they were adding to Governor Walsh's prestige.

But it was too late to retreat then. They had used up all their thunder and were caught between two fires.

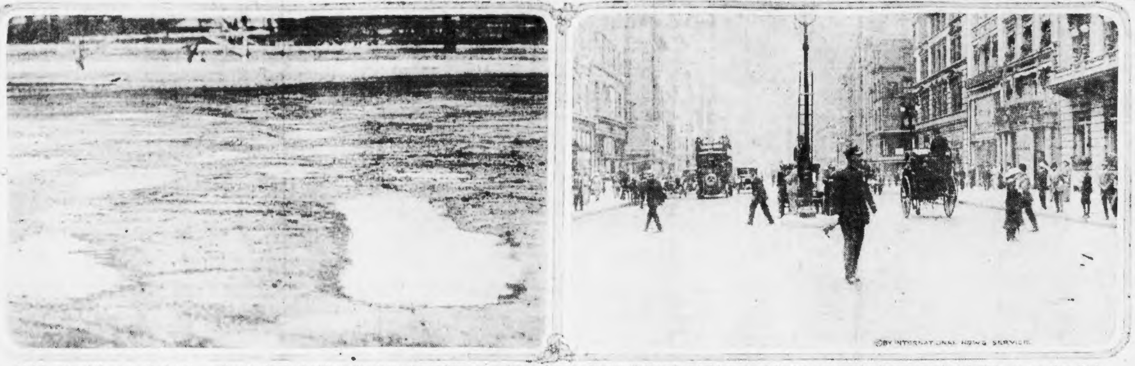
CITIZENS WILL DEMAND BETTER STREETS AT ONCE AT MASS MEETING ON FRIDAY NIGHT

MAYOR CALLS ON CIVIC BODIES TO HELP PLANS



At left, one of the many bad spots on Beacon street. Conditions like these give visitors a poor impression of a famous Boston thoroughfare. At right, for contrast, is shown a portion of Fifth avenue, New York, with surface as smooth as a billiard table.

©BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

Here is your opportunity to help Boston get better streets.

Attend the mass meeting at City Hall Friday night and make yourself heard for IMMEDIATE street improvements.

Let every Bostonian attend and make his demand for immediate betterment of the streets so emphatic that there can be no quibbling or delay.

Demand action—immediate action. Put the punch in what you have to say. Speak out straight from the shoulder. Voice your protest against present street conditions and against attempts to cloud the main issue, and urge in the strongest way you know how that something be done at once.

In a nutshell, DEMAND IMMEDIATE ACTION.

The people of Boston cannot be content with anything less.

The meeting is being arranged as a result of a call by Mayor Curley to the Boston Chamber of Commerce, to the various civic and improvement organizations, to the Central Labor Union, to the Master Teamsters' Association and the twenty-six teamsters' unions to be present at a public meeting to discuss street conditions and improvements and ways and means of getting them.

PLAN BIG MEETING.

The meeting will be held at 8 p. m. Friday in the old aldermanic chamber at City Hall with an overflow meeting in the City Council room. Mayor Curley announces that if the crowd is large enough the meeting will be held on the green in front of City Hall.

If you are interested in better streets—and what Bostonian is not?—be sure to attend this meeting and be even more sure to demand immediate action.

If you are interested in any organization which has at heart the civic pride and welfare of Boston, make it your business to see that organization is fully represented at the meeting.

Already the AMERICAN'S campaign for better streets for Boston has achieved important results.

START REPAIRS.

Over Sunday the city put sixty men to work repairing several of the downtown streets. In one day Court street, one of the four named by the Mayor as the worst streets in Boston, changed for the better. Scores of unsightly holes disappeared. Last Friday the AMERICAN printed photographs of a few of the many bad spots in Court street. These were repaired Sunday.

At the same time holes and other defects in Tremont street, Avon street, Devonshire street and Temple place were repaired.

All this work is a step in the right direction and marks a real advance following the AMERICAN'S first victory in its campaign. This first move was the agreement of President Bancroft of the Elevated to recommend to the road's directors at a meeting tomorrow that the company begin its share of the re-paving work on Summer street next Saturday at the latest.

NEED PROMPT ACTION.

Both steps mark a great advance in the right direction. But the street problem is by no means solved. The big problem still remains to be tackled.

There are miles on miles of Boston streets which are in disgraceful condition.

The battlecry is "Better streets for Boston."

Boston needs them—needs them in the worst way, and the AMERICAN is voicing the demand of all Bostonians for better streets AT ONCE, and for the BEST streets to be had, AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

As you have seen, the AMERICAN'S efforts in the line of street improvements have already borne fruit.

If you, Mr. and Mrs. Bostonian, will join in and make this issue a personal matter with yourselves, the fight will be won.

A united demand will force the solution.

The Mayor says money is needed. Others agree with him.

Concerted action on your part can have only one result—IMMEDIATE STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

So do your share NOW.

There have been several suggestions as to how the necessary funds for this direfully needed street work could be raised. The AMERICAN simply wants to see the work done. If money is needed it wants to see the money secured for the work.

The work is needed at once in the worst way—simply because the streets are in the worst way. The AMERICAN wants to see Boston provided with the best streets of any city in the world, instead of the worst streets such as it has now. The work should be begun at once. This means that the city must take some sort of immediate action.

COUNCILLOR'S VIEWS.

Mayor Curley has outlined his plan in detail. Councillor Watson, in a statement today, has this to say of it:

"It is unanimously agreed that many of our streets are in a deplorable condition. Who or what may be responsible for this state of affairs is irrelevant. The public welfare and the city's reputation demand action at once.

"A larger sum of money than is now in the hands of the paving division is necessary in order to relieve present conditions. When the reputation of the city is involved, and when commercial interests are suffering, it is high time something should be done—and it is the duty of the City Council and the Mayor to see that something is done immediately.

"In order to make a decent showing it is estimated that $500,000 is necessary at once. Three ways have been suggested in which it might be obtained.

"First: By applying to the Legislature for authority to add forty or fifty cents to the $10.55 tax rate to which the city is restricted.

"This is practically out of the question owing to the prospective early adjournment of the Legislature.

"Second: By the discharge of city employes and the reduction of salaries.

DISCUSSES PLANS.

"This seems to be the favorite remedy for all municipal ills with certain persons. I, for one, am not in favor of such action. It has yet to be proved, or seriously claimed, that the payrolls are padded at the present time. As compared with the cost of living, the wages of city employes represent considerably less in purchasing power than they did ten or fifteen years ago.

"The third remedy is to borrow $500,000 inside the debt limit.

"The objection to borrowing money for current expenses is undoubtedly sound. I agree that it is bad finance. But that is not the proposition.

"A twenty or thirty-year loan is not contemplated. The loan is to be a serial loan with a term of five years. That means that $100,000 will be paid off in each of the next five years with interest at 4 per cent., amounting to $20,000 the first year, $16,000 the second year, $12,000 the third year, $8,000 the fourth year and $4,000 the fifth year, when the entire loan will have been paid.

"What it practically amounts to is an addition of about eight cents to the tax rate for the next five years. That is, instead of adding forty cents to the tax rate this year for rebuilding streets that amount is distributed over the succeeding five years.

"Unquestionably the streets that are rebuilt will last more than five years and perhaps ten years. So that practically speaking it is not borrowing for current expenses.

FAVORS HEARING.

"I am in favor of a public hearing on this matter in order to obtain the views of people interested in the city's welfare as to ways and means of remedying the present conditions. This is no time to quibble or play politics. What is wanted is action, and I, for one, will be glad to consider any other plan than the one I favor if a feasible one can be suggested."

Whatever the plan to provide funds for this street work, let some action be taken immediately.

As we have said, there are miles on miles of streets that need repairing or reconstruction. There is no assurance now that the greater part of this work will be done. The AMERICAN, like the citizens of Boston, is waiting for the man or men to come forward and ACT. Action is what is needed.

It is not a time to blame anybody for the deplorable condition of the streets. This is the time for constructive action. And the man or men who will not only point the way but who will accomplish the job, will be assured of a warm place in the memory of the hundreds of thousands who are being inconvenienced by the bad street conditions.

TIME FOR ACTION.

What the Elevated is to do is a small part of the big task, though the Elevated's share of the work is very important. As President Bancroft has pointed out, the Elevated's responsibility is only the repaving between its street car tracks. The cost of all other street improvements must be paid by the city.

The Transit Commission has promised to start work with the Elevated on streets whose bad condition is due to the subway construction. The city will pay for this work, too.

You can help by talking better streets, by DEMANDING better streets. That is your right as a citizen.

But put a punch in your demand. Make yourself heard in the right places.

Let everybody get busy—improvement organizations, Chamber of Commerce, business men and men and womenfolks generally.

You don't need to have it demonstrated to you that the streets are in terrible shape. You observe the fact every day. It is a very evident fact. And it is NOT a cause for congratulation.

Contrast Boston's streets in their present shape with the streets of any other big city, and you will immediately see wherein Boston is far behind—away in the rear.

Contrast the city's streets with a stretch of State road, and you will see the same thing.

Take a look at a New York street. Or Chicago, or Baltimore, or any other city which takes pride in having good streets.

Look at the pictures in today's AMERICAN. One shows ONE of the many bad spots in Beacon street.

Beacon street throughout the nation is synonymous with Boston. Strangers that come to Boston inquire the way to Beacon street. They have heard so much about it they are curious to see it. Let them see the street as it is today, and as certain as the day is long, they will carry away no good impression of Boston streets.

They will find many other streets in Boston as lamentably bad as Beacon street.

Compare the picture of this bad spot in Beacon street with the other photograph—of a New York street. You are not amazed, not astounded, but it is a feeling of shame that comes over you.

Boston doesn't show up very well, does it? By no means. The comparison isn't at all favorable—to Boston.

There is a reason for this condition of Boston streets. But this is not the time to blame So-and-So for sins of omission or commission. The big thing to do is not to think about the blame, but to think of the remedy.

How can the wrong be righted?

Everybody knows what is the matter with the streets. The thing to do is to help in their betterment—in the efforts to make them the best streets of any city in the world, instead of keeping them the worst streets of any city in the world, as they are now.

FACING THE FACTS.

Mayor Curley says that action is needed. This is precisely true.

The remedy should be immediate.

Other cities deal generously with their streets. They spend millions.

Boston's allotment for new street work this year was a matter of $200,000. And most of this has been spent. After the bills for the proposed woodblock paving of Tremont street are paid, the city will probably have $15,000 or less to improve the bulk of its 581 miles of streets.

Boston seemingly has been spending thousands where other cities have been spending hundreds of thousands on new street construction and reconstruction.

Boston faces the hard fact of very bad streets and no money to pay for repairing or reconstructing them. It's a pretty critical situation.

No need to blame anybody for things done or undone. This is the time for action; for street improvements.

The job is a big one, and can best be achieved by tackling it NOW.

A MUSIC MASTER SINGING PRAISES

Prof. James E. Campbell, of Chelsea, Is Now a Well Man.

In order that any man or woman may derive a full measure of pleasure and success from life, it is necessary that he or she should be possessed of health in mind and body. It is certain that the greatest thing in all this world is health; without it a man can scarcely do anything worth doing, he can accomplish little that is really worth accomplishing. Attention to health then should take the place of every other object. That which is necessary to secure it should receive consideration in preference to everything else. For instance, the preparation, Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic, which is gaining such a following in Boston, where daily grateful people are testifying to its merits and recommending it to their friends.

Recently the signed testimonial was received from Professor James E. Campbell, who is one of the best known and popular instructors of music in Massachusetts, who has resided in this State for the past 30 years, and in Chelsea, Boston, for three years. He stated:

"I had suffered from dyspepsia, indigestion and a generally deranged stomach for the past four years. It was pronounced intestinal indigestion and gastritis. I became so bad that I was confined to my room for weeks at a time and could not eat solid food of any description. At one time I had to refrain from eating for five days, except oranges and fruit. I suffered untold agony and distress, and finally became afflicted with rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs. I had spent hundreds of dollars but never received any permanent benefit until nine days ago I commenced to take Plant Juice. I can truthfully say that your medicine has cured me and I no longer suffer from aches or pains. I can eat hearty, sleep fine and I am recommending Plant Juice to my many friends."

The Plant Juice man is at the Liggett's Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Wellesley Girl With Her Mother After Dismissal

Wellesley College authorities today made a statement regarding the suspension of Miss Elizabeth Zepfler, one of two girls who were suspended from college on Friday for violation of the good government rules.

Louis Zepfler, father of the suspended student, denied reports that his daughter was missing. He said:

"There is absolutely no mystery to the case. My daughter is now with her mother, spending a few days away from home."

Miss Zepfler, who is the daughter of Louis Zepfler, coal merchant of this city, was until her suspension a member of the 1916 class. A roommate from Dayton, Ohio, was suspended with her.

An official of the college says:

"Miss Zepfler with another girl was temporarily suspended from college last week. Their offence was violation of the good government rules.

"Under this suspension the girls will not be allowed to return to college this year, but may apply for reinstatement some time during the coming year.

"I do not know where Miss Zepfler is. I have been informed by President Pendleton that the girl's parents visited the president last Friday and at that time they were acquainted with the facts of their daughter's case. It is supposed that the daughter left with her parents at that time.

"It is a fact, however, that the authorities did take action and that the girls were temporarily suspended. As to the girl's whereabouts we have no reason to believe that she is anywhere but home."

The escapade which led to the girls' suspension was a late automobile ride and the attempt of the girls to climb through a window of Casanove, their dormitory.

Says He Saw Wife Only as a Manicurist

Clyde W. Aker, who is being sued for divorce by his wife Jessie, today told Judge Jenny of the Suffolk Superior Divorce Court that the only way he could see his wife was to go to a State street barber shop where she was a manicurist and there pay her $1 while she manicured his nails.

Mrs. Aker is suing on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. Aker testified that his wife kept late hours and that he was often awakened in the early morning by the chugging of taxi at his front door.

Mrs. Aker testified that her husband had thrown vases and other pieces of crockery at her.

Miss Rose Levinson Bride of H. I. Black

Miss Levinson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mendell Levinson of No. 26 Angel street, Dorchester. Her father is a prominent Boston merchant.

Mr. Black is a buyer for the W. & A. Bacon Company and is one of the best known business men in Boston.

To End Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results are nearly always quick and effective.

[illegible] who has catarrh in any form [illegible] a trial and free themselves [illegible] disease.

THIS WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATRES OF BOSTON

WARNER STARS AT THE MAJESTIC

"Alias Jimmie Valentine" with H. B. Warner in the title role, supported by the Lester Lonergan Players, was presented at two performances yesterday at the Majestic.

Mr. Lonergan who, with his band of clever and willing workers, is to be with us during the Summer months, has shown by yesterday's presentation, coupled with last weeks, "Bought and Paid For," that he has struck the popular chord with Boston's Summer theatre patrons.

Last night's welcome to "Jimmie" was as enthusiastic as it was three seasons ago, when Mr. Warner enjoyed a lengthy run here. The story of Jimmie Valentine is unquestionably one of the most fascinating ever presented in Boston.

Lee Randall, under the name of Jimmy Valentine, is convicted of bank robbery on the dying word of a crook. The action opens in the warden's office at Sing Sing. Here Jimmie, with other prisoners, gives an exhibition to some visitors of cracking safes.

One of the visitors is Rose Lane, neice of the Lieutenant-Governor of New York, also one of the party. In Jimmie, Rose recognizes her rescuer from a rowdy, while a passenger on a train two years previous.

Rose is successful in obtaining a pardon for Jimmie. Jimmie goes away and starts afresh. He succeeds. At last he rises to a responsible position in a bank. Just at the height of his successful career a child, while visiting the bank, becomes accidently locked in one of the bank's new vaults. No one knows the combination.

Jimmie is forced to choose between saving the child's life and disclosing his identity to a detective who has been on his trail or preserving his secret.

The entire play is full of intense moments and was exceptionally well received by the two large and enthusiastic audiences.

Supporting Mr. Warner are Lester Lonergan as Doyle, the detective; Eddie Phelan as Red Joclyn, Amy Ricard as Rose Lane, Lola Moynelo as Mrs. Moore, Jack Bennett as the warden, Jack Taylor as Blichendolphenbach, John Meehan as Bill Avery, Anna Laying as Mrs. Webster, George Graham as Robert Fay, Joseph Guthrie as "Blinky" Davis, Albert Berg as "Dick the Rat," Hubert Pierce as William Lane, Anna Kiley as Kitty, Ebert Baldwin as Bobby and Jack Taylor as Williams.

Orpheum Theatre.

The patrons of Loew's Orpheum were yesterday treated to a lively vaudeville show. Among the headline features were Fletcher Norton and Maude Earl, in a novelty singing and dancing offering. Others were Moore and Elliott, in a comedy sketch entitled, "A Baby Grand," and the Vernons, with their ventriloquial novelty. The "Exploits of Elaine" was also seen.

St. James Theatre.

The Loew's St. James patrons yesterday witnessed one of the best vaudeville shows seen at that popular playhouse this season. The headline honors were given to J. K. Emmet, who was assisted by Mary E. Ryan, in the sensational drama entitled, "The Strongest Tie." Mr. Emmet and his company made a decided hit. Among the feature photoplays was "The Exploits of Elaine."

CRAIG PLAYERS STAR IN COMEDY

Lovers of comedy were well entertained at the Castle Square Theatre yesterday when the first performance of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was given at popular prices. The comedy, so well known to theatregoers, was presented with equal ability by an all-star cast.

The role of the novelist, who wrote the book, is portrayed by William P. Carleton, who showed his wit and humor, as he has never before appeared in any of the comedies presented by the Craig Players.

The show was originally staged in this city by George M. Cohan, from the novel of Earl Derr Biggars, and the performance last night equaled that of the original company.

Miss Doris Olsson, as the girl reporter, was the hit of the show, and her interpretation of the work of the "craft" was repeatedly applauded by the audiences that crowded each performance.

The mystery of the young author who, on a wager of a large sum of money, visits the deserted Inn of Baldpate to write a novel within twenty-four hours, is the most interesting.

The many adventures of the novelist is best told by the performance of Mr. Carleton, who shows the many possibilities of success and failure, with his witticisms intervening.

Other prominent Craig Players to appear in the show for the remainder of the week and before the introduction of "A Celebrated Case" will be Theodore Friebus, James Seeley, Dudley Hawley, Betty Barricoat and Miss Mabel Colcord.

Frohman Memorial.

During the noon hours today while the funeral services of the late Charles Frohman, the American producer, who lost his life when the Lusitania was sunk, were being held in New York City, the Tremont Theatre was closed and a wreath placed upon the front of the building by Manager John B. Schoeffel as a tribute to the memory of the director whose plays were often seen in this and other Boston theatres. This kindly observance of the Frohman funeral was arranged by permission of the managers of "The Birth of a Nation," the attraction now playing the Tremont Theatre. Theatres in all parts of the country paid a like tribute to the memory of the late director.

Scollay Sq. Olympia.

A pleasing program was given at the Scollay Square Olympia Theatre yesterday. The bill included Ford and McNeil, in song and dance; Tremont Quartette, a male organization of harmony singers; Will Lytelle & Company in the riotous comedy playlet "Are You a Mason?"; Pesca and Trimini, Italian characters as street musicians; Edith Merreless & Company in songs of the nations in all their languages; William Marlow, the "Italian Alderman;" Max's Circus, a unique animal offering; Richard Henry Warren in popular selections on the great pipe organ, and the three-reel feature, "The Wrong Woman."

Howard Athenaeum.

Burlesque of the brightest nature holds sway this week at the Howard Athenaeum, and yesterday Violet Mascotte's "Rosebud Burlesquers" gave an entertainment of jollity that created an endless chain of mirth. One of the most enjoyable continuous shows was offered by the management, the foremost feature of which was De War's Comedy Circus, introducing dancing ponies.

Pemberton Inn.

The first days of the season at rejuvenated Pemberton Inn seemed like mid-Summer. The cabaret and dansant affords the best of entertainment, with such artists as Art Spaulding, Edna Leader, Mlle. Camilla, Miss Sawyer and the Bostonian Four, singing popular songs among the tables. Dancing is permitted in a cleared space reserved for that privilege.

Exeter St. Theatre.

The special attraction at the Exeter yesterday was "Niobe," presented in five reels, with Hazel Dawn in the title role. For the last part of the week, Thomas Edison will present Viola Dana in "The House of the Last Court," a picture in five brilliant acts.

Plays That Remain

"THE LAST LAUGH" began its final week at the Cort Theatre last evening. This amusing play is by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION" continues at the Tremont, where crowded houses are just as much the rule as when the spectacle first came to the city.

* * *

"A PAIR OF SIXES" is now on its last week at the Wilbur. This farce will leave Boston next Saturday with the record of the longest run of the season.

Coming Attractions

"POLLY OF THE CIRCUS" will be the offering at the Majestic next week. The Lonergan players will have the added strength of Florence Martin for the title role in this play.

KINEMACOLOR war pictures will be shown at Tremont Temple next week, beginning with a matinee on Monday.

Symphony Orchestra a Success at Fair

William E. Walter, press representative of the Symphony Orchestra, has just returned from San Francisco, where the orchestra is now completing the series of concerts which have been one of the features of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The last concert will be given tomorrow and the orchestra leaves San Francisco Thursday afternoon and is due to arrive in Boston Monday.

Mr. Walter says that the success of the orchestra in every respect surpasses the highest expectations. Artistically its playing has been a veritible revelation to the people of San Francisco. Dr. Muck made no allowance for the general lack of Symphony music on the Coast but arranged a set of programs such as he would give in Boston or New York.

Paragon Park.

The eleventh season of Paragon Park will open next Saturday and the public is promised many surprises in the form of innovations in entertainment. The chief feature in the Palm Garden this season will be the Broadway Musical Revue, with twenty-five show girls direct from the Great White Way, under the direction of Martin Brennan. This revue follows out the very latest idea in cabaret and with the dansant guests are assured of a spirited entertainment. Among the new features in the park, the most notable include Alber's eight trained Polar bears in a free exhibition every day and the Monkey Mansion.

Modern Theatre.

For intensely dramatic acting and thrilling situations "A Woman's Resurrection," presented this week at the Modern Theatre, is in a class by itself. The production is staged by the Fox Film studio, who offer Betty Nansen in the leading character. The play is a gripping adaption of Count Leo Tolstoi's world-famed "Resurrection," and is told in five parts. The rest of the program includes the third instalment of "The Goddess," which is announced for the first half of the week only, several new comic and dramatic photo-plays, the latest world events and some high class vaudeville.

Condit's Dance Pavilion.

Condit's Dance Pavilion at Revere Beach will open for the season next Friday night, when a dancing contest will be held. During the season instruction in modern dancing will be given the patrons.

Build House in One Night to Bar Saloon

BINGHAMTON, May 25.—Twenty-five carpenters were rushing early today to complete a bungalow, which must be built, painted and completely furnished before 9 o'clock in order to prevent the granting of a license to a saloon next door. Work on the structure started last night. A second force of twenty-five men is rushing work on the saloon. Both factions claim a victory.

MISS TALIAFERRO KEITH HEADLINER

That winsome star, Miss Edith Taliaferro, is at Keith's this week, bringing with her to Boston a breath of her own sunny Southland. The vehicle is a one-act drama of the Civil War, and while it brings out the heroism of the men and the strong character of the women of Dixie land, it is Miss Taliaferro's grace and charm and wonderful acting that make the little playlet seem like a part of the great drama of the war. Her beauty, her soft, sweet Tuckahoe accent and her girlish grace are compelling. She is ably supported by an excellent cast.

Going from the sublime to the extremely ridiculous, Bert Fitzgibbons is also at Keith's this week. He is the original daffydil, the one that poses for Tad's pictures, and he is as funny as the pictures. He is an old favorite in Boston and one of the funniest men in the business.

Among the hits were the Misses St. Claire, four wonderfully gifted Antwerp artists, who gave a concert consisting of solos and quartets of the violin, piano, cello and harp and songs.

Nothing succeeds like novelty with a vaudeville audience and the act of Doyle and Dixon, just from the New York Winter Garden, is certainly a novelty. It would seem that about every sort of dancing act that could possibly be thought out and worked up would have been thought out and worked up long ago, but these clever boys certainly have a new one.

Marion Weeks is billed as being on her first visit to Boston, but it will certainly not be her last. Many artists are billed in vaudeville as grand opera singers, but Miss Weeks really is. She is another Fritzi [illegible] and when better days arrive in grand opera, she will undoubtedly take her place among the stars. As she is hardly more than a girl she can afford to wait.

Park Theatre.

The host of photoplay lovers who attended the Park Theatre yesterday were given a splendidly arranged program of high class photography. Another great triple bill was the offering, headed by Mary Pickford in "Such a Little Queen." Another Paramount production was Margaret Turnbull's famous play, "Stolen Goods," in which Blanche Sweet played the title role. Charlie Chaplin was also seen in one of his latest laugh provokers. The Park Topical Review, the Paramount South American Travel pictures and the Park Concert Orchestra completed the bill.

Globe Theatre.

At Loew's Globe Theatre an interesting vaudeville was presented yesterday. The headline honors went to the [illegible] Twins, who offered one of the best singing and comedy specialties seen this year. Others to appear were Claude and Marion Cleveland in new comedy and songs. Among the feature photoplays was "The Exploits of Elaine."

Bowdoin Sq. Theatre.

The Bowdoin Square Theatre is this week offering a most attractive moving picture entitled "The House of Bondage." One of the features in the story is one that points the way to right living.

BREESE STAR AT BOSTON THEATRE

With Edmund Breese, one of the best known actors of the American stage, in the title role, the sensational drama, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," based on Robert W. Service's graphic and similarly named poem of the great north-country, is being offered as the feature of an all-star bill at the Boston Theatre the current week.

The film, which is replete with thrilling situations and which carries the audience from the rolling plains of the Western cattle country to the snow capped wastes of the far North, revolves around an all-absorbing story of love, tragedy and revenge. The climax is reached in a Klondike dancehall, where McGrew, the villain, is slain in a pistol duel by the husband of a woman he had lured away from home. The story is one which grips the attention of the audience from beginning to end.

Another big feature on the bill is the reappearance of Billy Reeves, a new star of the film stage, in a rollicking comedy reel, "The Clubman." Still another feature is a third installment of the great serial, "The Goddess." This will be shown today and tomorrow only.

By popular request "The Storm at Sea," one of the most remarkable marine pictures ever taken, is being given for a second week. Other big features include Sallsbury's "Wild Animal" pictures and the continued appearance of The Fadettes, America's most famous women's musical organization.

Bass Point and Nahant.

Beginning next Saturday, the Bass Point and Nahant Steamboat Co. will begin its season of picturesque harbor trips to Bass Point and Nahant. The steamer, General Lincoln will begin her regular trips on Sunday, with the Machigonne in reserve to take care of the triple holiday crowds. With some innovations in band, orchestra and cabaret entertainments, the Relay House and the Bass Point House are now open for the Summer and arrangements have been made for special attractions of these first three days.

Norumbega Park.

An excellent [illegible] vaudeville bill was presented yesterday afternoon and evening at Norumbega Park. The audience showed clearly that entertainment in the open is to be more popular than ever. Heading the bill were Monohan and Dolly, [illegible] of the rink, who introduced clever original skating novelties. White [illegible] and DeLacy, in an ablution comedy sketch, were very entertaining. The Jolliffes presented a unique variety act that received much applause and Wentworth, Vesta and [illegible] kept the crowd in laughter.

Stomach Troubles Due to Acidity

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind and stomach-ache are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. F. P.

ALMOST the whole of Celestia's life had been passed in dreaming. Waking or sleeping, she had dreamed, dreamed, dreamed. But her dreams had not been of the haphazard kind that come to the rest of us. She had dreamed what a master psychologist and schemer had dreamed that it would be best for her to dream. Himself unseen and often far away, she had dreamed as he willed.

There had been people to wait on her, and to see to all her physical needs; but for years she had looked these people daily in the face and never saw them. Instead she saw and dwelt among winged angels, and sublimites among serenities passing all descriptions and in a state of absolute uninterrupted bliss.

Educated to her finger-tips in the languages of this world, she had never had a master. In dreams she had been taught, without knowing that she was learning, all that a great and unscrupulous dreamer had thought best for her to know.

And as she leaned to the work of cooking, her lovely face red with the heat of the fire, that very dreamer was watching her from a neighboring thicket, with almost as much admiration as he felt for himself. And why not? He felt that what she was, what she was going to be, was all the work of his own mind. He even felt responsible, but with less justice, for her beauty. At least he had selected her for his purpose from thousands and thousands of children; partly because she was physically perfect, partly because her parents had been physically perfect. And partly because he had felt rather than known that her baby skull contained a brain upon which he could play with all his power and imagination.

Is a stone pure? It is neither pure nor impure. But a normal stone is cold. So was Professor Stilliter. Celestia's beauty affected not his heart and circulation, but his mind. Power and success alone touched his heart at this time.

But he wondered why, considering that she had passed almost her whole life under his influence, she had, at what she had supposed was her first sight of him, showed that she disliked and distrusted him. In fifteen years he had taught her much and prepared her for much, but then her dream life ended for the time being, he had shown himself to her, and she had fled from him with a stranger, as if for her life.

"Well, my beauty," he thought, "if you must hate me, you must. But you will do as I wish without knowing it; you will speak to men as I dictate, and, looking at men through your glorious eyes, I shall compel them to believe what you say and to do as you command. Whole multitudes will believe and obey."

He arose from his hiding place and stepped cautiously toward her. It was his intention to hypnotize her and get her away from that place quickly and quietly so that Tommy should not have an opportunity to make further trouble.

Celestia calling on Tommy to save her from Stilliter.

It needed no more now than a glimpse of that sphere of rock crystal which Professor Stilliter carried always with him to reduce Celestia to that condition of mind in which she spoke and acted upon impulse that did not rise within herself. But though he flashed the crystal suddenly in her face and exclaimed in a tone of sharp command, "Sleep, Celestia," either she was too startled and bewildered to see the crystal at all or for once something was lacking in the process, for she sprang to her feet with a cry of fear and ran from him, calling upon Tommy by name at the top of her lungs.

So she ran after Tommy, and Stilliter ran after her, and the two guides and old man Smellsgood came out of hiding and followed after him. And in this order they came to the shore of the island, toward which Tommy, alarmed by Celestia's cries, was struggling in a welter of foam.

But when he actually saw Celestia, Tommy's enthusiasm for being of service to her seemed suddenly to cool. He let his feet drop to the bottom and stood with just his head out of water. So standing, he saw Stilliter seize Celestia by the wrist and attempt to force her back toward the camp. He saw her shake herself free with an astonishing show of energy, and it was if her eyes no less than her hand went out to him in an appeal for help.

The veins stood out on Tommy's forehead.

"Don't let him take me away, Tommy!" she cried.

"You leave her alone!" shouted Tommy. "If you touch her I'll knock your head off."

But Stilliter by now appreciated Tommy's predicament and smiled drily.

"Come and do it," he said.

"You know I can't come and do it now, you dog," said Tommy, furiously, "but you just wait."

"Can't," said Stilliter. "In great hurry. Come, Celestia! You'll be better off with me. You can see for yourself that the young man has no intention of risking himself against four of us."

A certain king once offered his kingdom for a horse. If Tommy had possessed a kingdom he would have exchanged it willingly at that moment for the simplest pair of bathing trunks.

Celestia, meanwhile drew herself up, tall, proud and cold; she looked at Tommy, just once more, and she looked as if she had never seen him before. Then she turned to Stilliter. "I will go with you," she said.

Two plans had presented themselves to Tommy. He could have told Celestia to shut her eyes until he told her to open them; then he could have come out of the water and fought for her; but he discarded that first plan because he liked the second better. In this he would come out of the water when she had gone, slip into some of his clothes and follow her.

Celestia, Stilliter, the two guides and last of all old man Smellsgood vanished in the thick of the woods. Tommy gave them two minutes head start, and then, beautiful as a Greek god, he rushed out of the water to the trees where he had hung his cloths.

They were gone.

Tommy having failed her, it was obvious to Professor Stilliter that Celestia no longer even wished to escape. The heart had been taken out of her. There was no need to throw her into hypnotic trance. She would do as she was told.

Hearts I Win

Another of the "Right-O" Stories

By DOROTHY DIX.

"EUREKA! I have found it," exclaimed the Bookkeeper triumphantly, as he laid down the newspaper he had been reading.

"Found what—a sure tip as to which way the cat is going to jump in the stock market?" inquired the Stenographer tartly.

"Better than that. I have found out how to make a killing with the female sex," replied the Bookkeeper complacently. "You know no matter what sort of a bluff he throws, every man in his secret soul yearns to know what particular line of soft talk a woman will fall for, and I have just ascertained the never-fail brand that will make women come and eat out of your hand when you feed it to them."

"How did you get so wise?" asked the Stenographer.

"By improving my mind by reading the newspapers," said the Bookkeeper. "Here's an account of a divorce suit in which the deserted husband testifies that the gay deceiver who broke up his home and stole his wife away from him did so by calling her 'a poor, tired little kid,' although the lady was as husky as Jess Willard, and weighed two hundred and thirty pounds.

"That's the dope; that's the magic formula that you've only got to utter and the doors of the feminine heart will fly open before you. 'You poor, tired little kid!' Do you get all the subtle implication in that? Why, it's a libation to youth, and helplessness, and tenderness, and protection poured out at a woman's feet. By jinks, if I had a fat, middle-aged wife, and some man had wit enough to say a thing like that to her, I'd say: 'Here, take her; you're a better man than I am.'"

"That man certainly was a headliner in the Romeo class," admitted the Stenographer. "I guess there isn't a woman in the world, from Mrs. Pankhurst down, who wouldn't be flattered to death to be called a kid, and I know there isn't a mother's daughter of us who doesn't want to be sympathized with and told she's bearing a load heavier than she should, even when she's doing exactly what she wants to do. So I don't know that I blame the lady who eloped with the man with gumption enough to call her a 'poor, tired little kid.'"

"Sure thing," agreed the Bookkeeper, "and the less she looked like a poor tired little kid the more soothing to her feelings must have been the appellation. No doubt her husband, with the brutal candor of our near relations, had let her see that he considered her an able-bodied person, capable of doing a full day's work.

"Doubtless he had also remarked upon her heft. He may even have compared her invidiously with slim young maidens about half her age and a third her weight.

"Under such conditions, how like balm upon a smarting wound it must have been to be called a 'poor, tired little kid.' Not even a monument of virtue could have resisted a suitor with such a honeyed tongue as that."

"There's one thing," observed the Stenographer, "that I've noticed about most men and women, and that is that they'd rather be praised for their defects than their virtues. If you want to flatter a pretty woman don't applaud her beauty, but hurl a few bouquets at her intellect, even if she hasn't got any more brains than a hen, and if you want to get a smart woman going, just hand her a few about her complexion and figure, even though she's ugly enough to stop the clock.

"Same way with a man. I know a doctor who's done wonderful things in his profession that have made him world famous, but the way to jolly him isn't to talk about his scientific achievements, but to praise his poetry—and he writes the worst verses you ever heard, and I know a successful literary man who purrs under your hand if you praise his clothes and tell him he's a second Beau Brummel.

"It's a funny thing, but it looks as if the less truth there is in flattery the sweeter it is and the more it goes to our heads."

"Right-o," said the Bookkeeper.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

(Copyright, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. Serial rights in U. S. A. held by International News Service.)

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.

AS a matter of fact Godfrey Brooke always seemed out of place in London. London did not give him proper respect. In London he became a very ordinary member of the community, whereas he was nothing of the sort. A few days' journey from Charing Cross great Sultans and chiefs prostrated themselves before him; his name was something to conjure with; his personality influenced tens of thousands of square miles; yet here an office boy asked for his card, for he looked more like an affable sea captain than a maker of empire, than a man who was worth considerably more than a million pounds sterling, and perhaps a great deal more in other ways.

"I am glad you liked the thing," murmured Crawley vaguely.

"I liked it so much," said Brooke, "that I want to buy it."

Leveredge bent forward. Crawley gave him a furtive glance and then said to Brooke:

"There ought not to be any difficulty about that if you are prepared to pay the absurdly exorbitant price asked by Leveredge."

"Exorbitant price!" exclaimed Brooke. "But you told me that he only gave you £1,000 for the picture."

"Quite so; but what he gave me and what he will want are quite different things."

"Well, who is the chap to see about it?" asked Brooke.

Crawley again glanced at Leveredge. He was strongly tempted to say many things against his own interest, but he forebore. He summoned his courage and shattered nerves together and introduced the astonished Leveredge to Godfrey Brooke. It had come to him in a flash that he had been very much mistaken, and then that Leveredge did not know nearly as much as that worthy gentleman would have liked to have given him to understand and believe; but Brooke gave him no time to think or reconsider his point of view.

"Awfully glad to meet you, Mr. Leveredge," he said in his bluff, hearty fashion, gripping Mr. Leveredge's soft, fat and flabby hand in his own, hard as iron. "Congratulate you on a big thing! Crawley's a great friend of mine, don't you know."

Leveredge did not know; and the sudden acquisition of knowledge necessitated an abrupt reconsideration of his position, for if the man himself was not personally known to him the name was.

All the world knew Godfrey Brooke. Just now the newspapers were full of him; and Isaac Leveredge was not the man to miss such an opportunity. He rose to it like a hungry trout to an appetizing fly.

"I am glad to hear you say such things, Mr. Brooke," said Leveredge; but, before he could say anything else Godfrey Brooke, in his swift, incisive way, had got to the root of the question.

"What do you want, Mr. Leveredge?" he asked crisply.

Leveredge had never before in his career had to deal with this sort of individual. He was quite nonplussed.

"I'd like to buy the picture," he went on, "I know exactly where I shall hang it down at Hatchington. Come, Mr. Leveredge, what's your price?"

Leveredge fidgeted. Crawley tried very hard to behave as the occasion, from Brooke's point of view, demanded.

At length Leveredge appealed to the artist.

"Hadn't you better tell your friend the position?" he said.

And a glance at the Jew's face told Noel Crawley to his intense relief, that Leveredge had been merely trying to bluff him. If nothing else in the world was certain one thing was that Leveredge did not know the identity of the obliterated "Circe." Wherefore, what mattered anything?

Brooke looked inquiringly at the artist. From all appearance he was in the best of spirits. Crawley breathed long breaths of relief; Leveredge short ones of keen anticipation, for the latter events were turning out most satisfactory.

Crawley, pulling himself together, faced the position. "This is how it stands, old man," he said. "I sold 'Circe' to Leveredge for a thousand"——

"You made a fine bargain, Mr. Leveredge," said Brooke.

"That remains to be seen," cautiously remarked Mr. Leveredge. "A speculation of this sort is always a bit risky."

"Speculation you call it? Humph! I don't see very much of speculation. Looks to me more like a settled income for life. What do you say?"

Leveredge laughed weakly. Crawley remained silent. "The place was crowded today," said Brooke.

"Advertisement — advertisement," said Leveredge airily.

"Great thing, advertisement. Still, what about the notices—eh? One believes, and I think justifiably, that the notices are entirely influenced."

"Have you seen the notices?" asked Leveridge quickly.

"Only a few," said Brooke; "but I rather fancy I have inspired a few more. You see, I'm in a rather fortunate position. I am something of a journalist myself, and a certain paper—I might say a series of papers—are very amenable to my suggestions. However, that is neither here nor there, and I am distinctly keen on having 'Circe.' What's your price?"

Again Crawley attempted to do his level best to spoil the sale from a purely business point of view, but Mr. Leveredge was too keen to be put off now. This was the chance of a lifetime. For the moment he forgot all about his grievance against Crawley, and the possibilities of obtaining more than ample compensation for the dastardly trick the artist had played upon him. He concentrated all his energies towards driving a good bargain with the millionaire.

"As you're a friend of Mr. Crawley, Mr. Brooke, and as it seems you are in a great measure responsible for the present fame of the picture"—in how great a measure little did Leveredge guess just then—"well, under these circumstances, I'm willing to make a special price."

"Thanks," answered Brooke. "And—well, that is—what?"

"Ten thousand pounds."

Crawley shrugged his shoulders.

"If I were you, I'd see him and the picture in Jericho first," was his laconic reply. "The idea is absurd."

"But," protested Brook, "I particularly want this picture. I've taken a great fancy to it, and especially the girl's face—the Circe."

"I'll make it nine thousand," said the dealer.

And the millionaire wavered a few moments and then agreed.

So it came to pass that Godfrey Brooke became the proud possessor of the picture that a few hours ago might have meant the ruin of his life's happiness.

The business details did not take long, and an appointment was made for the morrow. Leveredge rose to take his departure and leave the two friends together. Crawley accompanied him into the hall.

"What about the other matter?" he asked.

"I think, old fellow," he said, "that we can drop that now—eh, what? Suppose we cry quits?"

"I'm willing," said Crawley. "Only there must be a clear understanding. The matter is never to be referred to again. You clearly understand that?"

"Oh, that's all right, old man!" said Leveredge, with a knowing wink.

"Very well, then."

"But I must say," said the art dealer, "that I'd give quite a lot to know the history and meaning of the whole thing. Just ordinary curiosity, you know. I suppose you aren't inclined to trust me—eh, Mr. Crawley?"

Crawley smiled enigmatically.

"There's nothing to trust," he answered.

"But why did you do it?"

"I merely wanted to improve the picture," he replied.

Keeping Hold of the Helm

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

ARE you a tempest-tossed soul whose course veers with every wind that blows or are you a sane and sturdy mariner who guides the bark of your destiny?

Do stray emotions and passions and circumstances carry you where they list with no purpose and no goal? Do the ambitions and ideals of the people you chance to meet sway you from your own notions of right and wrong and change your own desires and aspirations from day to day? Are you one of those who tack and sail about the sea of life and make no port and have no sure harbor ahead?

Or are you one of those fine strong beings—great in fact or in possibility—who have taught their hearts to know the control of their own souls? Are you guiding your own destiny by the high light of the stars or by any will-o'-the-wisp that flickers before your dazzled eyes?

Learn to say to your own spirit, "Peace be still!" Respect the might of self-control and calmness. Master your wavering purpose and marshal your own uncertain ambitions into line. Look at your life at a distance critically and like an outsider. Get a little perspective on yourself—see where you are tending—where your present tendencies must carry you. Stop drifting, stop tacking and coming about.

Drifting is idleness. Tacking is flurry. Self guidance—your hand on the helm—is calm, sane making for port.

Calmness will bring you poise and steadfast serenity. It will give you self-understanding and so knowledge of others. In real understanding of human nature you will find power. As soon as you can govern yourself you will be able to adjust yourself to the other people you meet; you will know enough either to rule them or to accept their guidance as is suitable.

Surely you know people who have but to come into a room and tranquillity is there, too. Their serenity brings peace and the feeling of safety and power. Such people are loved and loved steadfastly.

The man who is erratic and unreliable may be charming and lovable if one meets him occasionally—but he is too trying and uncertain for real friendship, for the lasting relations of life. The woman who is as elusive as quicksilver, as uncertain as a butterfly, may attract and delight, but she cannot hold. Unstable people never win stable affection.

Sweet-tempered, well-balanced tranquil people always win affection. Theirs is a wholesome healthy influence. Consciously or unconsciously we all turn to calm, well-balanced people with a feeling of liking that is sure and serene. There is a certain pleasant satisfaction in knowing that we may be certain of some one's friendship—that it is ours to call on—that there is a friend in our life who may be counted on—who will be THERE when wanted.

On the other hand, who of us does not know people who sour their lives, who poison the existences of all with whom they come in contact simply because they lack poise and self-control? An explosive temper is bound to cause unhappiness—still I know dozens of people who say with all complacency, "Oh, I'm quick to get angry—I fly right off the handle if I'm annoyed—but then I get over it just as quickly!" But happiness may be marred and lives may be ruined by the lack of self-control that "flies off the handle." Five minutes—even sixty seconds may destroy the whole fabric of a life.

Humanity fairly surges with uncontrolled passion, ungoverned grief, misdirected energy, false ideals of personal dignity and wavering anxieties and doubts and suspicions. It is wisdom to control your own thoughts and actions and to force the storms and tempests of your nature into control.

Keep your hand on the helm of your own destiny. Cultivate wisdom. Force yourself to sane, intelligent action and not to spasmodic talkings in one direction and irresponsible flitings in another. In serene, well-poised, sane self-control lies the success of your life. And serenity may be cultivated. Don't consider it clever and charming to be erratic. In unreliability lies the poison for your own undoing. Keep your hand on the helm of your destiny and guide the bark of your soul.

School Girls Have Waving, Curly Hair
USE GLORIOL WAVOLENE

It's an "awful nuisance" for busy school girls, society young ladies and working girls to keep their hair in curl.

It won't be hard to have curling, wavy hair all the time, if you'll moisten the hair with Gloriol Wavolene each time before applying irons or curlers. This is a clear, invisible liquid which tends to keep the hair in curl, and at the same time makes it soft and fluffy. Astonishing results are derived from its use. You won't have to bother curling the hair every time you want to dress it, and this is surely a saving of time and patience.

One application of Gloriol Wavolene will keep the most stubbornly straight hair in curl several days, and where the hair is naturally fluffy and inclined to curl, it may be made to last from ten days to two weeks or even longer.

Always use the Gloriol Toilet articles. All are pure and harmless and beautifying.

This Liquid Attacks Hair Under the Skin

To gain control of coarse, bristly growths which have been caused by the unwise use of pastes, rub-on preparations and other things which merely remove hair from the surface of the skin, you must use De Miracle, the original liquid hair remover. Art de la Mode says: De Miracle is "the best method." Only publications of the highest character are quoted by us. Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist.—Advertisement.

Red Blood for Pale People!

A big supply of red blood corpuscles is what helps to make any man or woman have a healthy, pink complexion and cherry red lips. Resort to paint and powder are totally unnecessary and besides that, are harmful. Three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, if used regularly for several months, seem to create a greatly added number of millions to the red and white corpuscles of the blood, and not only improve the color, but add increased flesh to the thin and frail body. These tablets promote assimilation, absorption and digestion, and this splendid aid to nature's forces transforms the complexion and figure. They are prescribed by physicians, but being of a perfectly harmless charcater, self-administration is being followed by many, who obtain them direct from any well-stocked apothecary shop.—Advertisement.

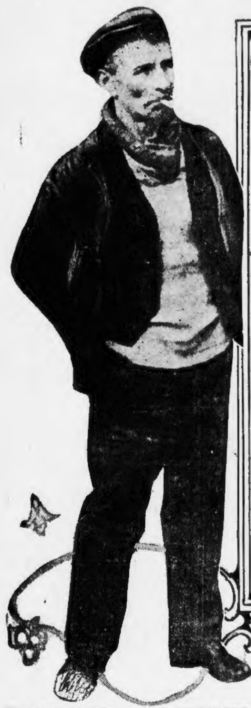
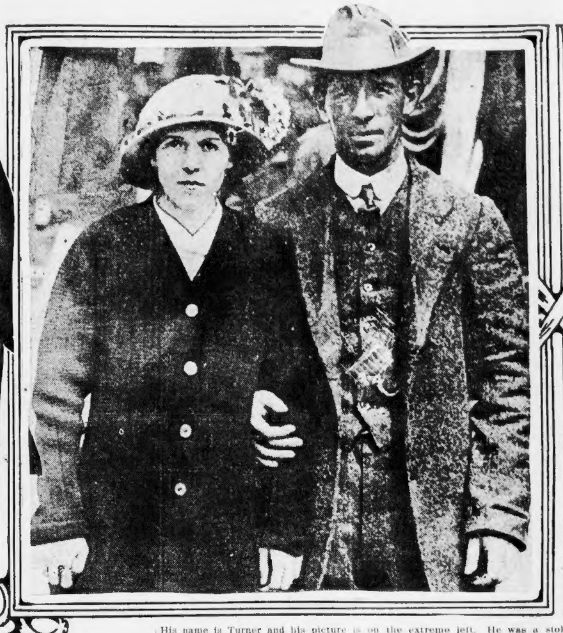
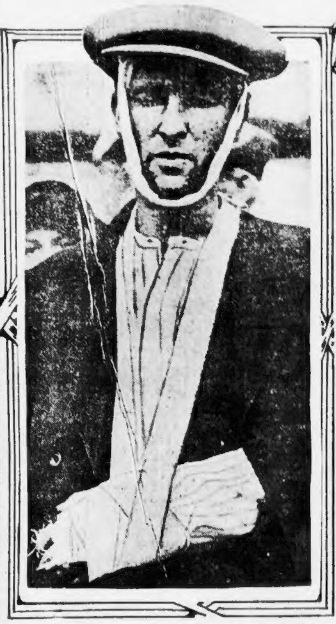
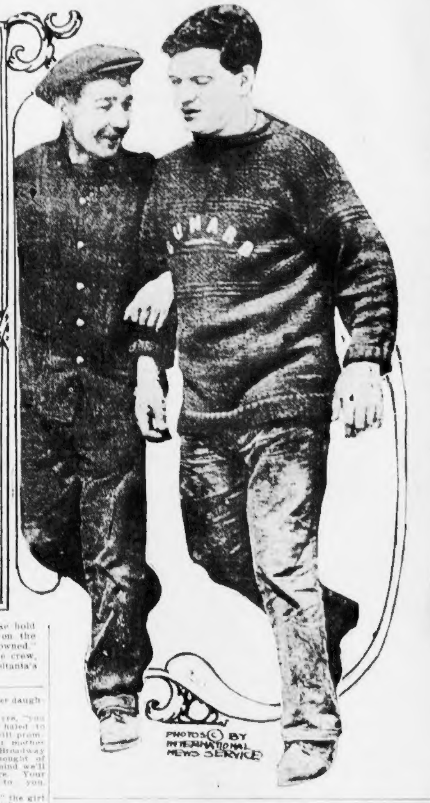
TITANIC AND EMPRESS SURVIVOR LIVES THROUGH LUSITANIA WRECK









His name is Turner and his picture is on the extreme left. He was a stoker on the Titanic when she went down; he was in the stoke hold of the Empress of Ireland when the Canadian Pacific liner got her death blow in the St. Lawrence. He was among the firemen on the Lusitania, when a German torpedo spoke the Cunarder's doom, and he is still alive. They call him "the man who cannot be drowned." Reading to the right from Turner are J. Walsh and his fiancee, who were saved after a compact to sink or swim together; one of the crew, who was injured by the explosion, and at the extreme right (bareheaded) seaman Roper, who rescued Captain Turner, the Lusitania's commander, and seventeen others who were struggling in the water.

MRS. KELLY HITS AT SOCIAL GUNMEN

girl. She ought to have been spanked and put to bed.

"Eugenia is not wayward. She is simply wilful," Mrs. Thomas declared.

"Badly advised by those who are ever ready to encourage headstrong young girls, she became a part of the mirage-like life of Broadway. But it is only temporary. I am sure when she contrasts this empty life into which she has for the moment dipped with the sane and wholesome surroundings to which she has been accustomed, she will come to herself.

"At the same time, there is a far more serious side to this than a family squabble which has finally gotten into police court. Eugenia is wilful. There is no doubt of that.

SCOUTS DAVIS STORY.

"Eugenia is not a bad girl at heart. She merely likes to have her own way, and she hasn't any idea where the path is leading. Mother of course realizes the danger and she has sought in every way to correct her. Eugenia of course thinks she has been too harsh."

Mrs. Thomas said she had met "Al" Davis (mentioned by Mrs. Kelly as one of the girl's associates) only once.

"It is ridiculous to say that Eugenia is fascinated by Davis," asserted the sister, earnestly. "She likes him, I think, in an indolent dilletante sort of way. But the suggestion that there is any serious understanding between them is foolish. I do not know if Eugenia has given Davis money or jewels. She will not discuss these things even with me.

"If Eugenia takes my advice she will throw herself upon the mercy of the court. Under no circumstances shall I accept her guardianship. I cannot be responsible for her. Furthermore, I intend to live permanently in Europe as soon as the war is over. I am yearning for my apartment in Paris. I much prefer life on the Continent to that in New York. Would I take Eugenia with me? No, indeed!"

HEIRESS' MOTHER DECLARES WAR ON SOCIAL "GUNMEN"

By RUTH M. BYERS.

NEW YORK, May 25.—"I am going to clean up those Broadway gangs of dancing men with light colored tops kind must go. I do not want other fasten themselves like vampires on to their shoes and wrist watches. These men don't want to work as their fathers did. They prefer to girls with money. They and all their mothers to suffer as they have made me suffer."

There was a fire of determination in Mrs. Helen M. Kelly's eye as she spoke of these men whom she blames for the waywardness of her daughter, Eugenia, whom she brought into court as incorrigible.

"I shall not rest until these people responsible for my daughter's position are scattered to the four winds of Heaven, branded with their true colors.

These men do not carry guns, but they kill just the same, and their very subtlety is their power. I mean to save my girl if it takes everything I have."

Mrs. Kelly showed me her daughter's room in their apartment on East Sixty-third street. It was all in white and filled with dainty, pretty things every girl adores. She showed me wardrobes full of lovely gowns and suits, many of them not yet worn. Hat boxes from exclusive establishments on Fifth avenue towered in irregular rows on the shelves of the wardrobe.

BLAMES WHITE LIGHTS.

"I told Eugenia many times she could dance as often and as long as she wanted to right in her own home," said Mrs. Kelly. "I gave her everything I could think to make her entertainment of her friends as pleasant as possible. But the white lights and the glitter pulled too strongly the other way.

"She always wanted more. Her debts around town, in spite of the money she had every week, are simply appalling. I have had to close every charge account we had. Come in this room," the mother continued. "Here you see the books I have kept of Eugenia's business affairs and mine ever since she was four years old. Through careful management and hours spent at this desk, I have increased Eugenia's estate many thousands of dollars."

Stacked in a corner of a closet in the library were yearly records of business transactions, the working basis of the management of a great estate, valued even now at close to $4,000,000.

GIRL DREW NOTES.

"While I worked to keep what my husband had left for us," Mrs. Kelly said, "Eugenia was drawing notes against her estate which I knew nothing about. She was throwing away her allowance and coming to me for daily sums varying from $15 to $35.

"Cafes, men and dissolute women would get her money, and then Eugenia would come to me to get a pair of shoes."

GIRL 'DOESN'T CARE IF SHE NEVER SEES HER MOTHER AGAIN'

"I won't go home. I won't give up Davis. I will not apologize. Mother started this thing and I'll win. They can't send me away. I am determined to see this thing through. I'll show them I can fight them all."

This was the answer Eugenia snapped at Mr. McIntyre, legal adviser of her mother, to the peace proposals of the latter.

She refuses to speak to her mother. She shot one glance at the woman who is breasting a sea of scandal in order, she declares, to save her daughter from moral bankruptcy.

"Eugenia," said Mr. McIntyre, "you are too nice a girl to be haled to court in this way. If you will promise me now to go to your mother and obey her and cut this Broadway crowd and eliminate all thought of this man Davis from your mind we'll drop this thing right here. Your mother's arms are open to you. Won't you go to her?"

"I will not go back to her," the girl exclaimed. "I don't care if I never see her again."

STORROW ACCEPTS PLACE IN COUNCIL

James J. Storrow, on his return from Chicago, will be sworn in by Mayor Curley as City Councillor to fill the unexpired term of the late William H. Woods, which runs till 1917. The banker was elected by the Good Government members of the council at the meeting last night, in spite of the opposition of Councillors Watson and McDonald.

Mr. Storrow's acceptance had been secured a week ago by a delegation of Good Government Councillors, who succeeded in prevailing on him to change the decision he had made after he had been defeated for the mayoralty by a small margin in one of the hottest political contests in the history of the city. At that time he announced that he had had his fill of city politics.

To still the rumors that his acceptance of the council position forecasted another fight on his part to become Mayor, perhaps as a "recall candidate," Mr. Storrow announced:

"I have been asked to serve as a member of the City Council, and I am going to take the job because I think there is a chance of doing some good work in it.

"Any thought of the mayoralty does not affect my decision one way or the other."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at the opening, there being more trepidation over the nature of the German reply to the American note on submarine warfare. The impression prevails that it will not be acquiescent in character. That is said to be acting as a brake upon stock markets. There is more disposition than ever to await its publication. Prices took a downward trend and in half an hour the list was weak. Trading in Boston was quiet, with zinc issues most in evidence. Prices here showed a tendency to ease off. The war order stocks had less support in New York.

EARLY PRICE RECESSIONS.

Among early price recessions in New York were Amalgamated ½, Anaconda ⅛, Utah ¼, American Can ⅜, American Smelting ⅝, Reading ½, Union Pacific ¼, U. S. Steel ⅝, American Locomotive 1, Crucible Steel 1¾, Mexican Petroleum 1⅝, Goodrich 2, Studebaker 2 and Westinghouse 3. Republic Iron & Steel had touched 31¼, up 2¾, and had receded to 29⅞, up ¼.

Declines in Boston included Alaska Gold ½, Butte & Superior ⅛, Isle Royale ½, North Butte ½ and Shoe Machinery ⅛. American Zinc was unchanged.

SPELTER AND COPPER.

A Butte & Superior official predicts that spelter will be high priced for at least two years, regardless of the duration of the war in Europe. It is said that May and June shipments have sold at 18 cents a pound, St. Louis, and that the market is not far from that level. How great is the demand for copper is indicated by exports of 2,039 tons yesterday, and 26,757 for the month to that date.

When the London metal market reopened today spot copper and futures were up 15s. each and electrolytic was unchanged. Spelter was up £2.

RAILROADS EARNING MORE.

There is expectation that railroads will figure prominently in the next bull movement, as they are doing more business on the whole. Baltimore & Ohio reports for April this year show an increase of $[illegible] in net operating revenue over the same month in 1914. For ten months its net operating increased $[illegible].

In the West, which is now an exceedingly prosperous section, it is said there is decided improvement in sentiment towards railroad securities. Farmers have plenty of money for investment and look forward to great crops and high prices for their products this year.

TO INVESTIGATE BOSTON GAS PRICE

An investigation of the price of gas in Boston is provided in a measure reported to the Legislature today by the Joint Committee on Rules.

The proposed investigation will be made by the State Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners.

The summary of the board's investigation will be reported to the next Legislature.

The investigation will be based upon the "sliding-scale" act, which created 80-cent gas in Boston. This act prescribes that the price of gas shall be fixed in proportion to the dividends of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company. Each increase of dividend requires a [illegible] decrease in the gas price. The "sliding scale" act expires next year.

In the resolve the State Board is directed to study "the conditions under which the system has been tried and its effect upon the public interest."

Governor Walsh, who recommended this investigation in a special message, suggested that it might appear that gas could be sold as low as 60 cents in Boston if the "sliding scale" act were continued or modified.

To become operative the resolve must be passed by both branches of the Legislature.

EXPECT ANOTHER RED SOX SHAKEUP

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 25.—After the big shake-up in their ranks it is likely that the Red Sox will display more pepper in the second game of their series with the Browns today. If they don't another shake-up is bound to come.

While the Red Sox were getting all of two hits off Grover Loudermilk in nine innings, one of their weakest batting exhibitions of the season, which caused them to be beaten, 4 to 3 in the opening game of the series by the Browns yesterday, President Joe Lannin observed the futile efforts of his high-priced athletes from a box behind the Boston bench.

That Lannin was displeased over the failure of his club to make more off Loudermilk's wildness—he passed eight batters—is probably putting it mildly. Lannin has made no announcement, but it is reported that unless the Hose take an early brace, other so-called stars will follow Hubert Leonard home, there to stay until such time as they can get in the line-up and play the brand of baseball for which they are being well paid.

While it is perhaps an injustice to Loudermilk in berating the Red Sox for failing to obtain more than two hits off his delivery, it is a fact, nevertheless, that the Red Sox did not impress yesterday as they have on previous visits. The old fire and dash of former teams was not there.

HENRIKSEN WANDERED.

In passing out rebukes, Olaf Henriksen is due for a call down for spoiling what chance the Red Sox had of sticking in the game by being trapped off second base during a ninth-inning rally. Henriksen had batted for McNally, who previously had succeeded Janvrin at third when Harold protested on being called out on strikes and was banished. Loudermilk dished out his eighth pass to Olaf. Thomas followed with the second hit off Loudermilk, a single to right and Olaf reached second. Mays attempted to sacrifice but failed twice and then struck out. This left men on first and second with only one out and the top of the batting order up. With Hooper at bat, Henriksen wandered too far off the middle pillow and was plucked off on Agnew's snap throw to Lavin. Henriksen looked foolish. Then Hooper forced Thomas for the final demise.

To be beaten by Loudermilk and the Browns these days is no disgrace inasmuch as the Rickeyites have won eight of their last ten games. The defeat would have been pardonable, however, had the Hose showed more alertness and made more of their opportunities. They didn't look like the Red Sox of old.

Because of Del Gainer's injury and Janvrin's banishment from the game yesterday, the Red Sox may be forced to lineup without these players in the second contest of the series with the Browns this afternoon. Gainer was badly lamed by Agnew when he rounded first base in the seventh inning, and will probably be forced to remain out of the game for a few days. Dick Hoblitzell, while not fully mended from his sprained ankle, will play the bag.

Evers in Town; Predicts Speedy Change in Braves

Captain Johnnie Evers of the Braves, who has been laid up for more than a month with a broken leg, arrived in Boston today from his home in Troy, N. Y.

Evers is not able to play and it will be some days before he fully regains the use of his leg, but he was out at Fenway Park this morning and directed the practice of the Braves.

Manager Stallings telephoned from his hotel that he was feeling better, but would not leave his room until the afternoon, when he would go to Fenway Park and direct his team in the first game of the series against the Cincinnati Reds.

"I am mighty glad to get back to Boston," said Evers. "The boys have had a bad slump due to poor pitching and their inability to come through with their bats. But I look for a speedy change and once we get started we will be hard to beat."

Harry Lord Joins Buffalo Federals

CHICAGO, May 25.—Harry Lord joined the Buffalo Federals here today, but Manager Schlafly said he probably would not take part in a game, except as a pinch hitter, until later in the week.

CINCINNATI REDS OPEN WITH BRAVES

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Cincinnati Reds are here to open a series with the Braves. And say—awful thought—if they should happen to win a couple of games right off the reel, and if the Giants should win at the same time, the Braves—the world's champs—would be the tail-enders.

When one contemplates the recent record of said world's champs the above awful thought is away on the inside of the bounds of possibility. We trust the bounds of possibility will extend itself (or themselves) so that no such direful thing will happen.

For two reasons. In the first place we like the Braves and want to see them succeed, and in the second place we have enough trouble as it is answering the query: "What's the matter with the Braves?" If the champs tumble into last place we shall either have to go to and from the ball yard in a closed taxicab (which is too expensive) or walk up there through the back alleys.

Now Herzog, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is firmly convinced, in spite of the Reds' standing in the community, that he has a first-class ball club that is liable to take an upward shoot at any minute. If he should convince his hired men that he is right in his estimate they might go out and wipe up the diamond with the Braves.

It will all come out in the wash, however, if by any chance the Braves should fall down to tail-end position they won't stay there long. The National League race is a beauty. A week's play would almost send the leaders down to the second division if they happened to have the recent luck of the Braves.

When the fans wake up to the fact that the race is close they are likely to get out to the park with more frequency and do a little shouting. Pat Ragan may be tried in the box against the Reds today. Either Benton or Ames will probably pitch for the visitors.

Midkiff to Manage Louisville Colonels

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 25.—President Wathen of the Louisville American Association Baseball Club, today announced he had requested the resignation of John F. Hayden, manager of the team since 1912. Ezra Midkiff, third baseman of the club, will be appointed successor. Midkiff at present is disabled with a broken ankle. He was formerly a member of the New York Americans.

McLoughlin Pitches No-Hit-No-Run Game

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., May 25. — Pitcher McLaughlin of Middlebury pitched a no-hit, no-run game against St. Lawrence here, the score being 10 to 0. McLaughlin walked a man in the first inning and another in the second, but retired the side in one, two, three order thereafter. He struck out twelve men.

SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Griff is rather proud of an outfielder named Connolly, who is doing the bulk of the hitting for the Nationals, for the nounce. Once before Griff had an outfielder labeled "Connolly"—given name Joe—and Griff regrets to this day that he didn't hold him. Joe went to the Braves and was the only .300 hitter on our club last season.

The present Connolly on the Nationals is Tommy, a student at Georgetown U. He was a classmate of Eddie Collins at the Irving School at Tarrytown, N. Y.

Here is an aggregation composed of players who have been under the big tent for ten years or more. It would take somewhat of a ball club to win from them, too:

Pitchers — Mathewson, Plank, Falkenberg, Bender, Bresnahan and Mullin.
Catchers—Bresnahan and Dooin.
First base—Chase.
Second base—Lajoie.
Third base—Moriarity.
Short stop—Wagner.
Outfielders — Leach, Schulte, Murray and Crawford.

Jack Hendricks of the Indianapolis club was reading Ring Lardner's Busher's letters to his friend.

"When I started reading this," he remarked, "I thought Lardner was writing about me. When New York got me I had a long talk with Frank Houseman, who had been in the big league, and he told me not to sign for less than $500 a month. I went to New York all primed to demand $500. I spent all the time between Chicago and New York arranging my arguments. I went into Freedman's office. He said: 'Well, young man, how much do you think you are worth?'

"'I want $500 a month,' I said, earnestly.

"Freedman never batted an eye. He called out: 'Here, Mr. Johnson, this young man's salary will be $300.'

"Then he turned to his desk, and I signed and was glad he hadn't said $200."

A new alibi has been discovered for baseball players. It is too much ice. There was a big laugh a few years ago when the Yale coach claimed that the Blue lost a big baseball game because the players ate ice-cream for lunch that day. Now we find the professionals using ice as an excuse for defeat.

The discovery that a professional baseball player can be affected by putting chilled liquids into his stomach has been made by Louis A. Dougher, of the Washington Times. Dougher writes:

"Milan and Gandil have ruined their stomachs with this ice stuff. They have grown weak physically; Grandil's eyes are becoming weak and he doesn't hit 'em out on a line like he did several years ago. And it's this ice stuff, I tell you.

"Milan and Gandil, particularly Clyde, are fiends on the ice stuff. Every meal for Milan has an order of something with ice. For breakfast it is ice coffee; for luncheon it is ice milk and ice-cream; for dinner it is ice tea and some more ice-cream. Before the theatre Clyde will drop into a couple of drug stores for an ice-cream soda. On his way home to the hotel he'll have one or two more.

"Milan has been sipping this ice stuff for four or five years—ever since he joined the ball club. When Milan was purchased in 1912 Chick became Clyde's pal. Gandil joined along in the visits to the soda fountains."

When the Athletics were winning world's championships there were three members of the team who were fiends for ices. They were Collins, Barry and McInnis. The ice-cream sodas never affected their hitting, fielding or base running, so that the ice alibi doesn't look very good.

It is said that George Whitted will be able to resume his place on the Phillies about June 5. The doctor has permitted Whitted to go to his home at Durham, N. C., for a few days, but Whitted is under orders to return on May 28. Then the plaster cast will be taken off his left leg.

Manager Moran pays the following to Whitted:—

"It is tough luck having such a player as Whitted injured. He is one of the most faithful workers that I have ever known. Every morning when I reached the park I found Whitted ahead of me. George was always one of the first men out on the field. He was always trying to pick up something about baseball that he didn't know. The fact that he played on a world's championship team didn't make any difference to George. He didn't think that he knew it all. He was always trying to learn and to keep the other players interested in baseball. I will certainly be well pleased when Whitted is able to return to the team."

The emery ball charge is getting to be a joke. The umpire that can tell the difference between a ball that has been roughed by sandpaper and one that strikes a rough spot on the stand or on a concrete wall has missed his calling. He should be a lawyer.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Supplies for 60,000 cars are now being bought by the Studebaker Corporation of Detroit for use in turning out its 1916 output which will reach that figure. The largest week's record of Studebaker sales is [illegible] cars.

The floor space of the Fisk Rubber Company plant in Chicopee Falls is to be increased approximately 50 per cent. This is to be accomplished by the construction of a number of new buildings one of which, a seven-story addition to No. 7 and No. 8 mills is now being built. About the middle of next month operations will be started on the new property at Oak and Grove streets, where will be erected a six-story office building, a two-story branch store and service station and a six-story concrete warehouse.

Artemas Ward, Jr., vice-president of the King Motor Car Company of Detroit, and H. C. Bradfield, who has just joined this organization, spent a few days of the past week with Philip E. Hawley of the King Motor Car New England Agency. They are on an observation trip pending a sales promotion campaign which the King factory is going to put behind King dealers. Bradfield, who is a former Boston newspaperman, takes charge of this department. It is the purpose of the King Company to build up a permanent sales force in the field co-operating with retail dealers that are worth while. Both factory men reported the automobile business in a very healthy condition.

What's to Become of Your Pets This Summer?

When you go away on your vacation, perhaps you won't take them with you, and as much as you dislike to you must sell "Tabby" or "Fido" or "Polly"—just as it happens to be. The easiest way is to advertise him—or her—in the "Dogs, Cats & Birds" Columns of the Boston American.

There is an excellent chance that you will find a buyer who will treat your pet as well as you did. Telephone your ad to Main 5180, or leave it at either office.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Fear of Graft Should Not Delay Start of Work for Good Streets

THE Boston Finance Commission is doing good work. It amply justifies its existence as an invaluable municipal institution. The citizens of Boston will be wise if they always give its public utterances the most careful consideration.

For this reason it is important that the Finance Commission should so guard its statements that erroneous conclusions may not be drawn from them by the public. The latest statement of the Commission on the streets might be considered an attempt to minimize the importance of immediate construction and repair work. But the AMERICAN does not believe that the Commission intended its statement to be so construed and would not at all agree with the Commission if it did.

It is very possible that some of the private concerns interested in street building have been active in the agitation for better streets. It is also possible that some of these concerns have relations, more or less intimate, with City Hall. But all this is entirely beside the point that the Boston streets are in a horrible condition and need IMMEDIATE attention. It cannot possibly be objected to the prompt beginning of the work on the streets that certain concerns may entertain hopes of graft in the work.

The Finance Commission is there with a capable lawyer and a man experienced in municipal affairs at its head. We have a district attorney's office and numerous other quasi public agencies, including the AMERICAN, which, being warned, will naturally be on the lookout for illicit profits in this work. The AMERICAN will be very glad to investigate any evidence of and expose any attempt at graft which may be called to its attention.

In the meantime, however, let us proceed with the necessary work. The AMERICAN has obtained from the Elevated Railroad and from City Hall and the Rapid Transit Commission the assurance of IMMEDIATE construction. There is no need to violate any policy of sound municipal finance. There is no need of perpetrating any dishonesty in commencing at once this labor. If it is much longer delayed it will exceed the labor of Hercules in cleaning the Augean stables.

After-Dinner Speeches Build No Dreadnoughts

We could wish that the oratorical expressions apparently indicative of a purpose to push for a greater navy, recently made by the President and the Secretary of the Navy, were to be taken literally.

Perhaps these statesmen will eventually come to believe what they now say. Circumstances like those of the present day are great educators, and it is not impossible that a strong advocacy of a greater navy will in time characterize the present administration.

For the moment, however, we question the enthusiasm of the Secretary of the Navy when aroused by the expansive influences of a banquet—even though naught but grape juice is served.

The Secretary's declaration at such a moment for "a larger and better navy" inevitably recalls the fact that his official recommendations to Congress fell so far short of such an end that Congress went beyond them and added materially to the recommendations he had made.

The Secretary's eulogies of Admiral Dewey now would sound more convincing had he given more heed to the recommendations for a naval programme presented by Admiral Dewey last year.

The President, too, refers in terms of praise to the admiral and declares himself in accord with that officer's policy of "steadily adding to its (the navy's) strength and equipment."

But thus far the President has done nothing to advance that policy. The vigor with which he pushed through Congress the Panama tolls bill, which was in direct violation of the Baltimore platform, has not been reasserted by him in behalf of any legislation favoring the expansion of the navy—though the Democratic platform explicitly promised such action.

But, perhaps, we are witnessing the dawn of a new tomorrow. It may be that an administration hitherto indifferent to naval needs has awakened to the situation in all its gravity. This is by no means improbable.

Nevertheless, it is well to remember that if these gentlemen have in fact reached this patriotic and commonsense position it is because of the pressure of public opinion and the agitation of clear-sighted citizens intent upon protecting the nation.

That agitation has been particularly vigorous and well ected of late. The public sentiment it has aroused is coherent and unmistakably expressed. It would have ired something more than ordinary stolidity, more the obstinacy of the theorist, for any public man to wholly unaffected by it.
administration, whatever its preconceived convic-bviously prepared now to defer to this public sen-hat sentiment has won a skirmish, but not a bat-agitation which has done so much must not be il it has done all—until it has established as a de of our naval programme Admiral Dewey's dequacy:

ACY IS NOT REACHED UNTIL OUR
RONG ENOUGH TO MEET ON EQUAL
NAVY OF THE STRONGEST POSSI-ARY."

What the Spots on the Sun Mean

They Possess a Great Deal of Significance and Importantly Affect the Earth, but the Spirit in Which the Wise Astronomer Studies Them Is a Tremendous Lesson for Mankind

By Garrett P. Serviss

WE shall hear a great deal about sunspots from this time forward, because they are coming on, once more, with increasing numbers and growing magnitudes. If you look at the sun now with a spyglass or a binocular, taking care to protect the eyes with deeply smoked glass screens, or, better, with a pair of electrician's black spectacles, you will see one or two groups of dark spots, which look like flyspecks on an electric light globe. To a powerful telescope these offer a wonderful appearance, the larger spots having inky black centres, surrounded with penumbral shadows, while in some places around the spots the surface of the sun is spattered with brilliant white splashes. These, which are seldom seen unless the spots happen to be not very far from the sun's edge, are the faculae ("little torches") of the astronomers. Faculae are brighter and more numerous near sunspots, but they also exist independently in places where there are no dark spots to be seen.

The return of sunspots is a phenomenon that astronomers regard with great concern. They come flocking back once in about every eleven years. It takes, on the average, four and a half years for them to reach a maximum of numbers, when the sun is seen to be more or less speckled every day, and six and a half years to decline again to a minimum, when for months in succession the sun's face is as clean as a polished mirror. Upon the whole, the heat on the earth, taking its entire surface into account, and basing the observation on the temperature of the atmosphere, is about one degree and a quarter of the Fahrenheit scale lower at sunspot maximum than at sunspot minimum.

This cannot be wholly due to the darkening of the sun caused by the presence of the spots, since, as Mr. C. G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institute has shown, the amount by which the temperature is lowered is five times too great to be accounted for in that way.

But there are other ways in which an invasion of a horde of spots on the sun makes its effects felt upon our globe. The most conspicuous of these is in connection with the earth's magnetism.

The earth is a great magnet, and the sun appears to exercise a direct influence upon its magnetic state, that influence varying with the condition of the sun as to spottedness. When sunspots are at a maximum, magnetic storms of great volence occur, during which the electro-magnetic excitement of the earth is vividly manifested—in the atmosphere by imposing displays of the aurora borealis, and in the earth itself by vagabond currents which interrupt telegraph and cable communication, and sometimes leap into visibility and audibility in the form of crackling sparks and electric flames playing about the instruments.

Occasionally it has been possible to trace phenomena of this kind to the influence of individual sunspots of unusual magnitude and activity. It is like the transmission of a shock from the sun to the earth, across a gap of 93,000,000 miles, supposed to be filled with nothing but the invisible and intangible ether.

Exactly how the forces that produce spots upon the sun affect the earth's weather is an unsettled question. There is a considerable amount of evidence for saying that such storms as our Western tornadoes, the hurricanes of the West Indies and the typhoons of the China seas are far more numerous during sunspot maxima, and especially during the time that the spots are increasing in numbers. It has also been thought that wet and dry seasons are connected in some way with the sunspot cycle, but on this subject the evidence is contradictory. Some statistics show that dry seasons accompany sunspots, and others that wet seasons accompany them.

Mother a Tyrant to the Business Woman

Aged Parent Thinks It Nothing but Right to Take the Wages of Successful Worker and Dictate to Her as She Did in Childhood Days

By Dorothy Dix

"IT'S a queer thing," said the Successful Business Woman, "that no matter how old an unmarried woman gets she is always a helpless, toddling infant to her mother, and no matter how much she achieves, nor how many other people she bosses, her mother arrogates the right to boss her and settle every question in life for her. Talk about no man being a hero to his valet, no single woman has any personal rights that a mother feels bound to respect.

"Now, when my father died, his affairs were found to be in a hopeless muddle, and there wasn't a dollar left when his estate was settled up. I rolled up my sleeves and went to work, and I have been fortunate enough not only to keep a roof above my mother's head, but to make it a better and better roof until now she lives more comfortably than she has ever done before in her life.

"When my father was alive and supported the home it was run to conform to his tastes. He was the bread-winner, and my mother felt it nothing but right that he should be petted and coddled, and that his word should be law. I am the bread-winner in this home, and every dollar that supports it I earn, but does my mother feel that the same deference should be paid to me and my whims that she paid to my father? Not at all. I am still her little girl, whose comings and goings and associations she feels that she has just as much a right to control as she did when I was seven years old and wore pig tails down my back.

"My mother, for instance, regards the money that I earn not as my individual money, but as belonging to the entire family, and she has no hesitation in bestowing it upon Mary, or Jane, or Tom or Bob, or any of their children that need, or want, some particular thing they haven't got.

"'I can't find my blue broadcloth,' I will say after a rummage through the closets. 'Oh, I gave that to Emmie when she was here the other day, and I gave her your pink hat with the long feather in it. She looked so sweet in it,' my mother will reply without turning a hair, or a suspicion of the injustice she is doing me in robbing me crossing her mind.

"Worse still, she forces me, because I have not the heart to hurt her, to support a lazy, ne-er-do-well brother, who finds it easier to graft his living than to work for it. And my mother considers me a cruel and unnatural creature because she knows that I do this unwillingly.

"'How can you be so hard on your poor, unfortunate brother,' she wails, 'as to begrudge him his food and clothes? You know it is because he is so sensitive that he cannot endure the cruel things employers say to him that he cannot keep a situation.'

"'I know that he will never work as long as somebody else supports him, and that in encouraging his triflingness, you are taking away his last chance of becoming a man,' I retort—and then because I cannot bear to see the hurt look in my mother's dear old eyes I apologize and give her money that I know she is going to slip to Tom.

"I guess it's just part of the world-old idea that a woman should be a slave to a man that makes my mother feel that it's perfectly fair and right for me to work to support my husky brother.

"My mother considers it her duty to keep a sharp eye on my acquaintances, and she shut the door in the face of my dearest friend when she found out she was a divorcee and saw her smoke a cigarette. I explained to my mother that the woman in question was one of the noblest creatures God ever made, and that she had borne with a brute of a husband until patience had ceased to be a virtue, and she could not longer live with him and maintain a shred of self-respect.

"Mother only shook her head, and replied that in her day no really nice woman ever got a divorce, no matter how her husband treated her, and that her own sister had been married to a drunkard who beat her, but, thank God, she never disgraced the family by leaving him. The very idea of my associating with one whom she regards as an abandoned character—for doesn't a cigarette prove that—distresses her so that what can I do but give in to her narrow, prejudiced, old-fashioned ideals?

"The funniest thing of all, though, is mother's attitude toward my work. She regarded my father's business as something sacred, and she would have esteemed it sacrilegious to have interfered with it, but she thinks of my work as a mere fad, some sort of a hobby that I have adopted to fill in an idle hour, and she never understands why I can't take a day off to go on a pleasure jaunt, or to put up preserves, or go and help nurse somebody in the family who is sick.

"Neither of my married sisters or brothers contribute a cent toward her living, yet she has a far higher opinion of them than she has of me simply because they are married and I am not. I am a failure in life to her because I'm an old maid, and she's always quoting my sister's opinions to me as if they were oracles by whose judgment I should be guided. Also she is much more grateful and appreciative of the occasional presents they make her than she is for the steady support that I give her.

"Queer, isn't it? Of course there are times when it gets upon my nerves, but then I think, with a choke in my throat, of the day that is coming only too swiftly, when there will be no gentle old tyrant on my hearthstone, and nobody to note—or care—about my comings and my goings."

Give the other fellow credit for knowing something.

You have no monopoly on the intelligence of the world.

May not every man have opinions? Certainly. He who has not is a pretty poor stick. You have a right to yours, but it does not follow that those you have are infallible. Neither is it true that those of the other fellow, if they be at variance with yours, are necessarily wrong.

Opinions are—or should be—based on a viewpoint.

The other fellow may have a better foundation for his viewpoint than you have, and if he doesn't agree with you it is no indication that he is intolerable or that he possesses less gray matter.

There are no more disagreeable people than those who are positive that they are always right. Such people are bound to be narrow, and the older they grow the more pronounced becomes this trait.

When you cease to learn, you are going backward. When you get to the place where the other fellow is always wrong, you are standing directly in your own light. You are blocking the way of your own progress.

Give the other fellow a little credit.
